Six dead in Orlando workplace shooting

NEW YORK: Several people were killed in a workplace shooting near Orlando, Florida, on Monday morning, said the Orange County Sheriff's Office, which offered no additional details about the incident other than the location and that it was contained. "Now investigating tragic incident," the sheriff's office posted on Twitter.

Citing unidentified law enforcement sources, WFTV said in a live streaming broadcast that four victims and a shooter had died.

The shooting occurred in an industrial area with multiple warehouses on Forsyth Road and Hanging Moss Road, the sheriff's office said.

WFTV said investigators had determined the shooter's identity. The television station interviewed a woman who said her sister was in a washroom when she "heard a bang" in her workplace. She emerged and saw someone on the floor.

"My boss is dead," the employee told her sister in a cellphone call. The woman told reporters her sister was not shot but was receiving medical attention due to the shock of what she witnessed. Neither woman was identified.

The shooting took place almost a year after 49 people were killed on June 12, 2016, at the Pulse nightclub in Orlando, the deadliest mass shooting in modern U.S. history. At least 58 people were also injured.

Perfect take-off: ISRO launches India's heaviest rocket into orbit

MPOST BUREAU

SRIHARIKOTA: India on Monday scripted history as it successfully launched its heaviest rocket GSVL MkIII-D1 carrying communication satellite GSAT-19.

The 43.43-metre tall rocket lifted off at 5.28 pm from the second launch pad at the Satish Dhawan Space Centre here and launched the 3,136 kg GSAT-19, the heaviest satellite to be launched from the country yet, into orbit about 16 minutes later.

A jubilant Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO) Chairman A S Kiran Kumar said it "is a historic day" and the Geosynchronous Satellite Launch Vehicle Mark-III (MkIII D-1) has successfully demonstrated its capabilities with the injection of GSAT-19 into the desired orbit.

"I wish to congratulate the entire team which has relentlessly worked each day for today's launch from 2002," he said.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi hailed the successful launch, saying it took India closer to next generation satellite capability.

BENGALI WON'T BE COMPULSORY BUT OPTIONAL IN HILLS: CHIEF MINISTER

Mamata clears air over Bengali in Hills

AMITAVA BANERJEE

DARJEELING: Laying to rest all speculation, Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee addressing a Government programme in Mirik on Monday declared that Bengali would not be compulsory but an optional language in the Hills. She further stated that as the Gorkha Janmukti Morcha (GJM) did not have any issue before the Gorkhaland Territorial Administration (GTA) they were resorting to divisive politics over the language issue. The Chief Minister declared that a special audit would be conducted in the GTA.

Talking on the language issue Banerjee stated "I have never said that Bengali is a compulsory subject in the Hills. The law has not been framed till now. It is a blatant lie. I have okayed Nepali in Public Service Commission so that it helps my Nepali brothers and sisters get employment" declared Banerjee.

She stated that just as it was important to know Nepali in the Hills, similarly it was important to have a working knowledge of Bengali if hill people want to work in the plains. "It is a major advantage but learning Bengali in the Hills is optional and not compulsory" the Chief Minister clarified.

Without naming Gurung, Banerjee stated: "Your threats will not work. Threatening to drive tourists away, threatening to close down hotels, transport and even schools. You have to remember that there are so many legal cases pending against you all including the Madan Tamang murder case. Law will take its own course. However, I do not believe in political vendetta" stated the CM.

"I will hold two Cabinet meetings in Darjeeling every year. The first one will be held on June 8 in Darjeeling. I will come to Darjeeling each month. It is my motherland" stated Banerjee.

The chief minister reiterated that she would deliver on the promises made to Mirik residents.

On the land document issue, she instructed the District Magistrate to hand over land right documents to the families by 5th of July.

The chief minister has allotted several crores to develop roads, improve lighting, drainage and potable water. Beautification of the Mirik lake is also on the anvil.

CBI searches Prannoy Roy's home, NDTV cries 'witch-hunt'

NEW DELHI: The Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) on Monday searched the residence of NDTV founder Prannoy Roy and three other locations for allegedly causing losses to a private bank, a move termed by NDTV as a "witch-hunt" based on "same old" false accusations.

The agency has registered a case against Roy, his wife Radhika and RRP Holdings for allegedly causing losses of Rs 48 crore to ICICI Bank, CBI sources said. They said the agency was conducting searches at four places in the national capital and Dehradun.

"This morning, the CBI stepped up the concerted harassment of NDTV and its promoters based on the same old endless false accusations," NDTV said in a statement.

It said NDTV and its promoters would fight tirelessly against this witch-hunt by multiple agencies.

The raids on Prannoy Roy were condemned by Opposition parties.

West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee expressed shock over the CBI searches at NDTV founder Prannoy Roy's New Delhi residence.

Banerjee described Roy as "highly respected and reputed" and said the trend of conducting such search operations was "disturbing".

Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal on Monday described it as an attempt to "silence independent and anti-establishment voices".

There was no political interference in the CBI raids on NDTV founder Prannoy Roy's properties, Union Information and Broadcasting Minister M. Venkaiah Naidu said on Monday while stressing that the law was taking its course.

India's NSG bid has become 'more complicated': China

BEIJING: China on Monday said India's membership bid in the NSG has become "more complicated" under the "new circumstances" as it again ruled out backing New Delhi's entry in the grouping, saying there should be non-discriminatory solution applicable to all non-NPT signatory countries.

China has been blocking India's membership in the 48-nation grouping which controls the nuclear commerce even though India has the backing of the majority of the members.

The group goes by consensus approach on the admission of new members.

"About the Nuclear Suppliers Group (NSG) it is a new issue under the new circumstances and it is more complicated than the previously imagined," China's Assistant Minister of Foreign Affairs Li Huilai told a media briefing here.

Saudi, Bahrain, Egypt and UAE cut ties with Qatar

MPOST BUREAU

RIYADH/ NEW DELHI: Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Bahrain and the United Arab Emirates announced on Monday they were severing diplomatic ties with Qatar, as they accused the Gulf state of supporting terrorism.

Saudi news agency SPA said Riyadh cut diplomatic ties and closed borders with its neighbour to "protect its national security from the dangers of terrorism and extremism".

INDIA DOESN'T FORESEE ANY PROBLEMS FOR ITS OWN RELATIONS IN GULF REGION

A Saudi official cited by SPA said the country decided to "sever diplomatic and consular ties with Qatar, and to close all land, sea and aviation ports".

The "decisive" measure was due to the "gross violations committed by authorities in Qatar over the past years", the Saudi statement said, as the UAE made an announcement cutting ties.

Egypt's foreign ministry also accused Doha of supporting "terrorism" in a statement as it announced the severing of ties.

The statement said all Egyptian ports and airports would be closed to Qatari vessels.

Bahrain news agency said the tiny kingdom was cutting ties with Doha over its insistence on "shaking the security and stability of Bahrain and meddling in its affairs".

The Saudi-led Arab coalition in Yemen's two-year war also said it had expelled Qatar.

Qatar slammed the decisions of three Gulf states and Egypt to sever ties with it, saying they were "unjustified" and aimed to put Doha under political "guardianship".

India doesn't foresee any problems for its own relations in the Gulf region after Saudi Arabia and four of its allies cut off diplomatic and other ties with gas-rich Qatar on Monday.

Common chemicals in shampoos, alcohol may up CANCER RISK

Exposure to aldehydes, a commonly found chemical in everyday items is found to have a damaging effect on our defence mechanism, which in turn increases cancer risk

Common chemicals found in everyday items such as furniture, cosmetics, shampoos and alcohol can increase the risk of cancer, a new study led by an Indian-origin scientist warns.

Aldehydes are a class of chemicals made in our own bodies in small quantities but increasingly found everywhere in our environment. Exposure to these chemicals has previously been linked with cancer, but the reasons for the link remain unclear.

Researchers, led by Professor Ashok Venkitaraman from the University of Cambridge in the UK, used genetically-engineered human cells and cells from patients bearing a faulty copy of the breast cancer gene BRCA2 to identify the mechanism by which exposure to aldehydes could promote cancer.

Damage to our DNA, which arises frequently as cells in our bodies divide, can lead to the development of cancers, but our body has its own defence mechanism that helps repair this damage.

However, researchers found that aldehyde exposure breaks down this defence mechanisms even in normal healthy cells, but people who have inherited a faulty copy of BRCA2 are particularly sensitive to such damage.

Everyone is born with two copies of most genes. People who inherit a single faulty copy of the BRCA2 gene are susceptible to cancer.

The reason behind this is not fully understood, because their cells should be able to repair DNA using the lower – but still adequate levels of BRCA2 protein made from the remaining, intact copy of the gene.

The new study, published in the journal Cell, shows that aldehydes trigger the degradation of BRCA2 protein in cells.

In people who inherit one faulty copy of the BRCA2 gene, this effect pushes down BRCA2 protein levels below the amount required for adequate DNA repair, breaking down the normal mechanisms that prevent mutations, which could promote cancer formation.

“Our study shows how chemicals to which we are increasingly exposed in our day-to-day lives may increase the risk of diseases like cancer,” said Venkitaraman.

“It also helps to explain why the faulty genes could make some people particularly sensitive to the cancer-causing effects of these chemicals,” he added.

“An important implication of our work is that it may be aldehyde exposure that triggers cancer susceptibility in people who inherit one faulty copy of the BRCA2 gene. This may help us in future to prevent or treat cancer in such people,” he said.

One common potential source of aldehydes is alcohol: our body converts the alcohol that we drink into acetaldehyde, one such chemical.

Ordinarily, this is broken down by a natural enzyme known as acetaldehyde dehydrogenase, but over 500 million people mainly from countries such as Japan, China and Korea inherit a faulty gene, ALDH2, that inactivates this enzyme. This is why many Asian people develop flushes when they drink, but could mean they are also particularly sensitive to the cancer-promoting effect.

This new research shows that aldehyde accumulation in such people could trigger cancer susceptibility by degrading BRCA2, compromising DNA repair, whether or not they inherit a faulty copy of BRCA2.

An estimated 30-60 per cent of people from Japan, Korea and China carry the faulty ALDH2 and may therefore be at risk from cancer through this new mechanism.

Sleeping late on weekends may up heart disease risk

GOING TO BED and waking up later on weekends than on week days may lead to social jet lag which is associated with an increased risk of heart disease, poorer health and worse mood, a new study warns.

According to researchers from the University of Arizona in the US, social jet lag has emerged as an important circadian marker for health outcomes.

Each hour of social jet lag is associated with an 11-per cent increase in the likelihood of heart disease. These effects are independent of sleep duration and insomnia symptoms, which are related to both social jet lag and health.

“These results indicate that sleep regularity, beyond sleep duration alone, plays a significant role in our health,” said lead author Sierra B Forbush, from the University of Arizona.

“This suggests that a regular sleep schedule may be an effective, relatively simple, and inexpensive preventative treatment for heart disease as well as many other health problems,” said Forbush. Overall health was self-reported using a standardised scale, and survey questions assessed sleep duration, insomnia, cardiovascular disease, fatigue and sleepiness.

The American Academy of Sleep Medicine recommends that adults should sleep seven or more hours per night on a regular basis to promote optimal health.

In addition to adequate duration, healthy sleep requires good quality, appropriate timing and regularity.

Kids searching internet for drugs, alcohol more than porn

CHILDREN GLOBALLY

now communicate, play and access adult content via internet less than they did a year ago and search for websites with information about drugs, alcohol and tobacco more, a new report said on Monday.

According to Moscow-based cybersecurity firm Kaspersky Lab, children opened communication websites such as social media, messengers or emails in 61 per cent of cases, compared to 67 per cent in the previous 12 months (May 2015 to April 2016).

“Games have fallen to nine per cent from 11 per cent and adult websites now account for 1.2 per cent instead of 1.5 per cent,” the report found.

Meanwhile, visits to pages containing information about drugs, alcohol and tobacco now account for 14 per cent of detections, though the figure was only nine per cent during the previous reporting period.

Children now only use computers to visit websites that have no mobile app equivalent or that are easier to view on larger screens.

“This may explain why the share of communication websites opened on computers is falling while the proportion of pages with ‘Alcohol, tobacco, narcotics’ content is growing,” said Anna Larkina, Web-content Analysis Expert at Kaspersky Lab.

KVIC adopts two villages under SMARTGRAM Initiative

OUR CORRESPONDENT

Realising the vision of President Pranab Mukherjee of making villages economically vibrant, the Khadi and Village Industries Commission (KVIC) has decided to adopt two out of 100 villages – selected under the SMARTGRAM Initiative of the Rashtrapati Bhawan. The decision was taken few days before a function was held at Dhaula village in Haryana, where the President laid the foundation stone of a Drivers’ Training School and a Secondary School.

Giving this information, KVIC Chairman, Vinai Kumar Saxena said that following the call from the President, that success in SMARTGRAM initiative is possible only when the government, private sector, academic institutions, NGOs and people in the villages come together for the development of villages, the KVIC has made a commitment to the President House, for providing its full co-operation in development of the two villages, i.e. Raisina and Lohtaka – adopted by the commission. “On the advice of the Rashtrapati Bhawan, the KVIC will implement all Khadi and village industries’ programs in both the villages, to generate sustainable employment for the villagers there. We have decided to launch our bee-keeping, spinning, weaving and stitching centres in both the villages, where the villagers will be provided proper training to eke out their livelihood,” he said, adding, “Not only that, we will also implement our small-scale industries’ other various skill-oriented and employment-generating programs like incense stick-making, candle-making, pottery and pickle-making. The KVIC will also conduct sensitisation programs for the youths about the Prime Minister’s Employment Generation Program (PMEGP) followed by facilitating loans from different nationalised banks under the PMEGP – to generate 100 per cent employment in these villages.”

Vinai Saxena further said that both the villages would be developed as ‘model’ villages. “We will also train the villagers about the bio-gas plants there, besides distributing Charkhas and looms among the villagers,” he said, adding, “The villagers, particularly the youth appear enthusiastic about KVIC’s programs there.”

Earlier, the Rashtrapati Bhawan secretariat had asked the KVIC to come forward in implementation of its schemes in these villages. “We accepted this proposal whole-heartedly and the President’s Secretariat has appreciated the KVIC as a valued partner in the SMARTGRAM initiative. In an official letter, it has categorically mentioned that active participation of KVIC in both the villages under the initiative will go a long way in realising the vision of the President to make the villages economically developed,” he added.

Actor Bikram pleads HC for anticipatory bail

OUR CORRESPONDENT

KOLKATA: In a bid to avoid getting arrested, actor Bikram Chatterjee appealed before the Calcutta high court to grant him anticipatory bail in connection with the incident in which model Sonika Chauhan was killed.

Rajdeep Majudar, Bikram's counsel, moved before the division Bench of Justice Dipankar Dutta and Justice Debi Prosad Dey seeking anticipatory bail.

According to investigating officers, Bikram has taken the step to appeal for anticipatory bail after the Alipore Court had allowed police to amend the sections against him under Section 304A of the Indian Penal Code (IPC) to 304 (IPC).

While initiating the case soon after the accident in which Sonika was killed on April 29, the police had booked Bikram on charges of causing death by negligence under Section 304A of the Indian Penal Code (IPC) and rash driving (279 IPC). But after receiving the report of the forensic experts, the police had moved to the court to amend the section. The court on May 30 allowed the police to book Bikram on charges of culpable homicide not amounting to murder under Section 304 IPC for which the punishment would go up to ten years if found guilty.

The police had moved to the court seeking amendment in the section after forensic experts confirmed that the car was at a speed of something in between 95 to 115 km per hour.

Investigating officers felt that Bikram moved the High Court apprehending that the police might arrest him any time after section was changed to 304 IPC and he took the step to avoid getting arrested.

It may be recalled that Bikram was questioned by the investigating officers from Tollygunge police station after he was released from the private hospital off EM Bypass where he got admitted after the accident. The police had also questioned some of his friends and co-actors in this connection.

Sovan releases state environment report 2016

OUR CORRESPONDENT

KOLKATA: Sovan Chatterjee, environment minister on Monday released the state environment report West Bengal, 2016 at a function organised by the state Pollution Control Board (PCB).

The 348-page document will help in the formulation of policy and planning by providing all relevant information. The task of preparation of the report was taken up in 2015 and it incorporates all relevant information regarding the current state of environment. There are 20 chapters in the report starting from West Bengal at a glance followed by demography, land and land use, soil, agriculture, forest and wild life.

There are write-ups on bio-diversity, water resource, groundwater, wetlands and mineral resource of the state. The report also covers major environmental challenges like climate change, industrial pollution management, solid waste management and urban waste water management.

Biomedical waste management and electronic waste management have been given special emphasis. The major environmental regulations and salient orders of various courts have also been dealt with in a separate chapter.

Experts in various spheres of environment studies have contributed their articles and the key issues have been explained with the help of tables, figures and boxes.

PCB has taken up elaborate measures to create awareness about environment among students. Thirty rain water harvesting centres have been set up all over the state. Stress has been given on the use of solar power. Some tribal students from Bhalopahar School in Purulia were given solar lanterns. The office of PCB and PDCL in Salt Lake are also using solar power.

Sovan Chatterjee also stressed the need to create awareness among students about environment. "We cannot see environment but it is controlling our lives and we will have to preserve it by following the right method," he said.

PCB has published a book containing poems on environment by Pratul Mukhopadhyay and cartoons by Chandi Lahiri to create awareness about environment.

The state environment department is also bringing out another book containing 60 poems on environment and cartoons by three well-known cartoonists on environment among children.

The book will be distributed among the students of all state-run, aided and sponsored schools. The environment minister on Monday released posters on environment at the function.

Deal with environmental problems with an open mind, says Sovan

OUR CORRESPONDENT

KOLKATA: Sovan Chatterjee, state Environment minister on Monday urged environmentalists to deal with any problem with an open mind and come up with solutions keeping in mind the larger interest of people.

"I am ready to all kind of discussions and dialogues but I expect the environmentalists and researchers to address any problem with an open mind," he said. He was speaking at a programme organised by the state Pollution Control Board (PCB) in the auditorium of Power Development Corporation Limited (PDCL) at Salt Lake this morning. The programme was held in connection with the World Environment Day celebration.

Referring to a proposed flyover connecting Eastern Metropolitan bypass with Biswa Bangla Sarani in New Town, he said, around 10 or 12 cottahs of land would be required to construct 146 pillars on the waterbody to give support to the flyover and the state government would create an alternative water body. "East Kolkata wetland comprises 12,000 hectare and out of that, only 8,000 square feet will be required to install the pillars and the state government will construct an alternative waterbody. The proposed flyover will reduce the time of travelling from Nabanna to Kolkata airport. But some environmentalists without going into the details of the project, have begun criticising it. I am ready for discussion but they should come up with an open mind and try to understand the ground reality," he remarked.

Noted singer and environmental activist Pratul Mukhopadhyay and state Environment minister Sovan Chatterjee water a plant at a programme on Monday

He said the erstwhile state government had declared the East Kolkata wetland as Ramsar site but while taking up the matter with the Centre and Ramsar authorities, they had ignored the ground reality and the present government faced hurdle to set up a water treatment plant and get a piece of land to set up a new dumping ground. "The former government should have taken into consideration the ground reality before declaring it as a Ramsar site," he pointed out.

Referring to his childhood he said: "We took lessons in swimming in ponds and now children are going to the swimming pools set up in various parts in the city." This is development. There will be waterbodies and construction will go hand in hand but keeping the ecological balance intact," he maintained. He said that the state government would not at all carry out any construction by filling up waterbodies.

CID sleuths on Monday arrested another fake doctor from Howrah’s Bauria who had allegedly been practicing in a chamber for the past seven years with fake certificates

OUR CORRESPONDENT

KOLKATA: West Bengal Medical Council (WBMC) is keeping a tab on Homeopathy, Ayurveda and Unani doctors who were practicing as allopaths in private hospitals.

WBMC President Dr Nirmal Maji on Monday said that a large number of fake doctors are still operating in various private hospitals in the city after obtaining a diploma in Ayurveda, Unani or Homeopathy and action would be taken against them.

Maji said that there are some fake doctors in government hospitals as well and WBMC is registering complaints against such doctors. Altogether, 11 complaints have been lodged with the Bidhannagar commissionerate against fake doctors by the WBMC among which, three FIRs have been lodged against some fake doctors in government hospitals. WBMC will take action against these persons who are practicing both in private and government-run hospitals without a registration either from the state medical council or the Medical Council of India.

“Many chambers have mushroomed in various parts of the state especially in the districts where people are practicing as an MBBS doctors after getting degrees from various paramedical councils,” Maji said.

He also added that these doctors do not have a valid registration from the state medical council. They start practicing in various chambers after getting a diploma from various councils that have come up in the state in the past few decades. Many of these doctors have obtained a diploma degree while in reality, they actually studied up to the level of class VIII-X,” Maji said.

WBMC has repeatedly written to various private hospitals in the state to furnish the details regarding the doctors, their registration numbers and others but they were reluctant to share these information.

“In November, we had instructed the private hospitals to provide certain information about the doctors but they failed to do so. We are following certain procedures under the purview of the WBMC to find out the fake doctors in private hospitals,” Maji maintained.

He also said that WBMC is making it mandatory that all the doctors have to mention their registration numbers on their prescriptions and the subject of their study. Those doctors who have not yet registered themselves with the WBMC have been requested to do so. The doctors also have to enlist their information relating to their degrees and other credentials with the WBMC in every five years. There are around 76,500 registered medical practitioners in the state, Maji maintained.

He also urged the people to inform to the state medical council through email or letter or report it to the local police station if they find anything suspicious in a doctor. The Criminal Investigation Department (CID), which has been probing the fake doctors’ issue, is sharing information relating to various doctors from time to time for cross verification.

The CID also submitted a list 10 suspected fake doctors from North Bengal with the WBMC.

It may be here mentioned that the Criminal Investigation Department (CID) on Monday arrested another fake doctor from Howrah’s Bauria. He had allegedly been practicing in a chamber for the past seven years. Ram Sankar Singh, the accused, had allegedly been practicing with a fake MBBS certificate. The CID arrested the accused after some local residents lodged complaints against the doctor with the police. The accused, however, claimed that he has valid documents. This is the seventh arrest by the CID in this connection so far.

Defiant Gurung continues protest despite CM’s assurance to Hills

AMITAVA BANERJEE

DARJEELING: Despite Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee categorically stating that Bengali language subject is not compulsory in Hill schools but is optional, Bimal Gurung has decided to go ahead with his agitation.

The GJM has launched a series of agitation programmes in the Hills against what they have dubbed as forceful imposition of Bengali language. Education institutes had been shut down for two days with students asked to wear black badges; protest rallies have hit the streets and black flags put up all over the Hills.

Mamata Banerjee addressing a government programme stated: “Bengali is not compulsory in the Hills. It is optional.” GJM president Bimal Gurung reacting to this stated: “We will not withdraw our agitation programme. I do not believe here word of mouth. She has adopted a resolution in the Cabinet meeting and should not impose it in the plains of the Darjeeling district, Jalpaiguri and Alipurdar districts.”

Gurung has been issuing threat statements time and again. Earlier he had asked hoteliers and transporters to remain prepared to evacuate tourists within half an hour.

He asked everyone to gather in front of the Gorkha Ranga Mancha Bhawan, (a short distance away from Richmond Hill Guest House where the CM puts up) dressed in traditional attire from where a protest rally would commence. He even asked tea garden workers to join in. The police has not given permission for the rally.

“If they stop our rally or take any action against us we will immediately call an indefinite bandh. Hoteliers, tourists and businessmen have to remain prepared for this,” reiterated Gurung. He even asked all vehicles plying in the Hills to display black flags from Tuesday.

“DM, SP and all government officers posted in the Hills have to converse in Nepali else we will shut down offices,” threatened Gurung. He said that henceforth the CM would always be greeted with black flags. The tourism industry has already started feeling the pinch of Gurung’s repeated threats. While many tourists have already cut short their stay and left, there has been a large number of cancellations also.

Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee vehemently criticised Gurung’s bandh threat. “What will Darjeeling do without tourists? Tourists come from all over India. It is the local people who will suffer. The leaders have strong sources of income,” scorned Mamata.

IMD sees no relief from heat wave for next 20 days

DHIRENDRA KUMAR

NEW DELHI: As the country celebrated World Environment Day on Monday, the Indian Metrological Department (IMD) has alerted people about the rise in occurrences of heatwaves as well as heatstrokes for the next 20 days.

According to the IMD predictions, the heatwaves would continue to trouble people for the coming 20 days as the monsoon is expected to cover northern regions of the country by June end.

"As per the data reports, there would be no major changes in the weather pattern. The heatwaves and heatstrokes would continue to trouble as the monsoon would take its course to arrive in northern regions," IMD Director General KG Ramesh said.

"The monsoon has arrived in Kerala and has started moving to other destinations, but it will take at least 20 more days to reach areas under the influence of heat waves. Till then, people have to bear it and protect themselves from being affected by it by adopting preventive measures," the IMD chief said.

As the temperature is on the rise, it seems 2017 may prove to be another warmest year following 2016, which was the second warmest year on record with a temperature of 1.26 degrees C higher than the baseline. The winters of 2017 (January to February) has already been marked as hottest in recorded history with a temperature of 2.95 degrees higher than the baseline.

Raising an alarm over drastic changes in weather patterns, Centre for Science and Environment (CSE) in its latest study has noted that the country has been getting warmer continuously, consistently and rapidly.

Commenting on the development, Chandra Bhushan, who is deputy director general of CSE, said, "The implications of this fundamental fact are serious for the economic, social and ecological well-being of the country. We are experiencing frequent extreme weather events, and our weather is becoming unpredictable. Losses due to extreme weather events are mounting and it is our poor who are suffering the pains of the climate change."

The heat waves have claimed the lives of over 500 across the country, with southern states alone registering about 300 deaths due to heat strokes this year as the temperature has touched above 47 degrees Celsius mark in various states.

'Universal minimum wage for all workers to be reality soon'

OUR CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI: Universal minimum wage for all industries and workers, including those getting monthly pay higher than Rs 18,000, would soon be a reality, according to senior officials. The proposed Code on Wages providing for these "pro-worker provisions" is likely to be placed before the Cabinet this month for approval so that it could be pushed for passage in the forthcoming Monsoon Session of Parliament, they said.

"The ministerial panel on labour issues headed by Finance Minister Arun Jaitley has already approved the Code on Wages. It has already been sent to the law ministry for vetting after which it would be placed before the Cabinet for approval," a source said.

The labour ministry is keen to push the bill for passage in the next session of the Parliament expected to begin next month, he said.

The Wage Code Bill seeks to empower the Centre to set a minimum wage across all sectors in the country and states will have to maintain that. However, states will be able to provide for higher minimum wage in their jurisdiction than fixed by the Central Government. Besides, the minimum wage would be applicable on all classes of workers. At present, it is applicable for scheduled industries or establishments in the law. Similarly, the universal minimum wage would be applicable for all workers irrespective of their pay. At present, the minimum wage rates fixed by the Centre and states are applicable to workers getting up to Rs 18,000 monthly pay.

The proposed Code on Wages will subsume the Minimum Wages Act of 1948, the Payment of Wages Act of 1936, the Payment of Bonus Act of 1965 and the Equal Remuneration Act of 1976.

Defence ministry working on tie-up with OEMs: Bhamre

OUR CORRESPONDENT

PANAJI: The Defence Ministry is working on a concept of strategic partnership with original equipment manufacturers to give a boost to indigenisation of defence-related production, Union Minister Subhash Bhamre said on Monday.

He said they want world class manufacturers to come to India and establish their units in association with local partners.

"We are working on a concept of strategic partnership with the original equipment manufacturer (OEM) which will be a foreign company. We have identified four segments for it, including fighter combat aircraft, tanks, submarines and helicopters," Bhamre told reporters in Goa.

The Minister of State for Defence was talking about the achievements of the Narendra Modi-led government in three years.

India looks at foreign defence manufacturers to transfer their technology, work with Indian scientists, people, train them so that in the next few years "our people will start manufacturing in the same segment," he said.

"This was an idea which has been worked on since last few months. The idea was initiated by then defence minister Manohar Parrikar. In the months to come we will be able to finalise strategic partnerships under this programme," he said.

On the increasing role of private partners in defence manufacturing, Bhamre recalled how armed forces were dependent on Ordnance Factory Board (OFB) and defence public sector units which were functioning under protective environment.

The minister, however, said they lacked in research and development (R&D).

"Unfortunately, what we have seen all the years...we accept the contribution by these units (OFB and PSUs), it is not that they have not done anything.

"But what we wanted in last 70 years, R&D to develop in defence sector and then wanted to have a kind of platform so that we can export, but on export scenario there was no significant growth," he said.

"As far as R&D is concerned, it (growth) was not significant because they (units) worked in protected environment. There was no sense of competition.

"It (the competition) comes when defence manufacturing doors are open to private industry. That was lacking," he said. "Though the doors were opened for private players in 2009 in the defence manufacturing sector, there was no level playing field," Bhamre said. "That is why between 2009 and 2014 we could not see private industry coming to invest in defence manufacturing," he said.

MUMBAI: Congress on Monday demanded a special session of Maharashtra Legislature to discuss the ongoing agitation by farmers and to know the BJP-led state government's stand on loan waiver issue.

"The situation prevailing in the state is serious. It was wrong for the chief minister (Devendra Fadnavis) and (MoS agriculture) Sadabhau Khot to announce that the strike (by farmers) was called off when it was still on," Maharashtra Pradesh Congress Committee chief Ashok Chavan said.

"We demand an immediate special session of the Legislature to discuss this ongoing strike and the government's actual stand on loan waiver and to give justice to farmers," he told reporters here.

Chavan said the chief minister's contention to provide loan waiver to farmers with marginal land holdings will do no good to them as most of the cultivators in suicide-prone Vidarbha and Marathwada regions have land ad-measuring more than five hectares.

"The CM cannot differentiate among farmers. They are in a bad situation and there is a dearth of facilities for them due to consecutive drought for three years. The drought did not choose to affect only marginal farmers," he said.

On Fadnavis' allegations of hooligans resorting to violence in the name of farmers' protests, Chavan said "everybody knows which is the party that has the maximum number of goons." "During our tenure in government for 10 years, we increased the minimum support price (MSP) for farmers by an average 140-160 per cent, about 14 per cent increase annually. The BJP, in the last three years, has increased MSP by a mere 1.5 per cent," he said.

Responding to the chief minister's announcement of bringing in a law during the

Nashik APMCs remain closed

NASHIK: All 15 Agriculture Produce Market Committees (APMCs) in Nashik district of Maharashtra on Monday remained closed on the fifth day of farmers' state-wide strike.

Nashik is one of the major centres of fruit and vegetable production in the state, and the biggest producer of onion in the country. Speaking at a meeting called here by Kisan Kranti Morcha, which is coordinating the strike, senior agriculture expert Dr Budhaji Mulik said the state government was misleading the farmers and the strike will continue till all demands were met.

Police detained 50 activists of Kisan Kranti Morcha in Nashik.

The activists were allegedly asking vendors to close their shops. NCP leader and chairman of Pimpalgaon Baswant APMC in the district Dilip Bankar said all 15 APMCs remained closed today. No onion auctions took place at Pimpalgaon and Lasalgaon APMCs, he said. Farmers dumped milk and onions on the road at Dugaon in Chandvad tehsil, reports said.

Officials at the rural police control room said that agitators were detained at many places in the district as they tried to block roads. Farmers in Maharashtra have been on the warpath since June 1 for their demands including waiver of farm loans and lower power tariff.

Nashik and Ahmednagar have become nerve centres of the protest.

forthcoming monsoon session to criminally charge those who buy agricultural produce at a rate lesser than the MSP, Chavan said it is the government's responsibility to buy it at MSP.

"This law will only apply to traders. They will close down their business saying it is unsustainable for them.

Farmers will be left in a lurch if the government does not take responsibility to buy the produce," he said.

BJP Govt is conspiring to split farmers: Shiv Sena

OUR CORRESPONDENT

MUMBAI: The Shiv Sena on Monday attacked the Maharashtra government over the farmers' stir, accusing it of creating fissures among them in an attempt to break their unity.

Similar tactics were used to crush the Maratha stir as well in the past, the Sena charged.

"Had the demands of farmers been accepted, they would have showered the CM with flowers. But some people in the government took (Minister of State for Agriculture) Sadabhau Khot with them and tried to break farmers unity," the Sena said in an editorial in the party mouthpiece 'Saamana'.

"A divide and rule policy is being used. Leaders who went to 'Varsha' (to hold talks with the CM at his residence) need to answer if any of their demands were met," it said.

Farmers in Maharashtra had launched their stir on June 1 pressing for their various demands, prominent being waiving loans due to crop failures and indebtedness, and guaranteed MSP.

"The CM says 35-40 lakh farmers will be benefited with the loan waiver. But can he answer what about those farmers in Marathwada who have a land holding of more than two hectares and are dependent on rains?" the Sena questioned.

"The state government has tried to delay its death temporarily. First farmers were called to his house (Varsha), were insulted and finally given nothing. The farmers have no trust in the government and hence are continuing their strike," the Sena said.

The Sena said the chief minister got an opportunity to temporarily save his government by creating fissures among the farmers.

"But, will farmers get a guaranteed rate for their produce? Sadabhau's ministerial position will stay but will extinguished gas stoves of farmers' light again?" it said.

Also, attempts made to break the strike points to the failure of the government, it added.

The Sena also questioned if Jayaji Suryawanshi, who was part of the delegation that met the CM and announced calling off the strike, give a guarantee that farmers won't commit suicide for the next four months.

After holding talks with leaders of farmers on late Friday night, the Chief Minister had on Saturday announced that his government would waive loans of farmers with small land-holdings.

He said 80 per cent of such farmers are in Vidarbha and Marathwada who will benefit by the move.

Bihar toppers scam: CM Nitish takes up challenge to hold exams fairly

OUR CORRESPONDENT

PATNA: Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar on Monday said that his government has taken it as a challenge to conduct future examinations fairly in view of the topper scam for the second consecutive year but it has "miles to go to plug all loopholes".

A year after state board Arts topper Ruby Rai was arrested, Patna police on Friday nabbed this year's topper in the stream, Ganesh Kumar, on the charge of appearing for the examination on forged documents.

"We have taken the episode (toppers scam for second consecutive year) as a challenge to conduct exams in the future more effectively. We focused on checking question paper leaks and bungling in evaluation process. But wrongdoers find ways somehow," Kumar told reporters here.

"We have miles to go to plug all loopholes and conduct the exam in a free and fair manner. We do not believe in casting a veil on the shortcomings.

"As soon as irregularity regarding the arts topper (Ganesh Kumar) surfaced, I directed officials not to waste time in ordering probe and to lodge an FIR and arrest the wrongdoers involved in the exam racket," he said.

In a re-run of last year's class XII arts topper scam when Ruby Rai had pronounced political science as "prodigal science", which she said, was about cooking, this year's topper Ganesh Kumar struggled to explain the basics of music, one of his subjects.

Shelter cattle you have 'protected': Nitish to BJP

PATNA: Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar on Monday ridiculed the BJP and saffron outfits for "going over board" in the name of cow protection and asked them to instead give shelter to cattle which are seen loitering on roads in Uttar Pradesh. "They should first display sensitivity towards cattle by creating special shelter houses for cows and buffaloes seen loitering on roads - a common feature in Uttar Pradesh where deserted cattle can be seen even on a four lane expressway," he told reporters here.

"UP has the highest number of cows dying after eating plastic items," he said lampooning the growing cow-vigilantism in the BJP-ruled state.

Kumar described the Centre's notification to prohibit cattle trade for slaughter and the controversy shrouding banning of illegal slaughter houses as "bak-was" (ridiculous). "The BJP and its associate saffron organisations' overdrive in the name of cow protection is an attempt to vitiate the environment with an intent to cast a veil on failed promises made during poll," the chief minister claimed. Talking about banning illegal slaughter houses, Kumar mocked the BJP saying "Bihar enacted a law against illegal slaughter houses way back in 1950 when BJP was no where in the picture".

Graft probes against Govt staff must be finished in 6 months

MPOST BUREAU

NEW DELHI: Changing an over 50-year-old rule, the government has set a deadline of six months to complete probe in corruption cases involving its employees.

The decision has been taken to speed up the investigation in such cases, most of them pending for quiet a long time.

The Department of Personnel and Training (DoPT) has amended Central Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, 1965, and decided time-line for critical stages of investigation and enquiry proceedings.

The Inquiring Authority should conclude the inquiry and submit its report within a period of six months, says the amended rules.

However, an extension for a period not exceeding six months at a time may be allowed for any good and sufficient reasons to be recorded in writing by the disciplinary authority, it said.

Earlier, there was no time-frame to complete an enquiry.

The disciplinary authority shall deliver to a government servant, accused of irregularity and corruption, a copy of the articles of charge, the statement of the imputations of misconduct or misbehaviour and a list of documents and witnesses by which each article or charges is proposed to be sustained, the new rules said.

On receipt of such articles of charge, the government servant shall be required to submit his written statement of defence, if he so desires, and also state whether he desires to be heard in person, within a period of 15 days, it said.

The time-limit can, however, be extended for a period not exceeding fifteen days. But under no circumstances, the extension of time for filing written statement of defence shall exceed forty-five days from the date of receipt of articles of charge, the rules said.

At present, there is no time-limit for submission of the employee's statement of defence.

The new rules are applicable to all category of employees excluding those in all-India services--Indian Administrative Service (IAS), Indian Police Service (IPS) and Indian Forest Service (IFoS)-- and a few other categories of officers.

The Central Vigilance Commission (CVC), in a directive, had last year expressed serious concern over delay in finalising corruption cases and asked all departments to complete these inquiries within a maximum period of six months to keep away "nothing will change" notion associated with governance.

The directive comes after the commission noted that administrative authorities are not adhering to the time-schedule prescribed for completion of disciplinary proceedings.

'No! Taj Mahal is still not safe from pollution,' insist greens

OUR CORRESPONDENT

AGRA: Environmentalists on Monday said the Taj Mahal and other historical monuments in Agra remain at risk from pollution even twenty-three years after the Supreme Court announced a set of measures to protect them. Speakers at a day-long dharna here, organised on the occasion of World Environment Day, said environmental conditions in the city had worsened due to the increased number of vehicles and migration from villages which resulted in expanding urban limits.

The activists also sought to draw the attention of the authorities towards the plight of the Yamuna river.

"Where dense green patches and community ponds once kept pollution in check, high-rise buildings and colonies had mushroomed," said activist Dr

Devashish Bhattacharya.

The Supreme Court had issued a series of directives including shifting and closure of all polluting industries in the eco-sensitive Taj Trapezium Zone.

The iron foundries and glass units were ordered to shift out of the zone or switch over to natural gas through a pipeline which the GAIL laid.

Acting on the recommendations of the high-powered Dr S Vardarajan Committee, the apex court ordered uninterrupted power supply and shifting of 'Petha' units, leather shoe factories and local dairies outside the city.

The activists said the local administration has failed to shift the washermen, dairies and petha units to Kalindi Vihar and the shoe factories to a leather park in Achnera, despite plots being allotted.

Identify goals to be achieved by 2022, PM directs secys

MPOST BUREAU

NEW DELHI: Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Monday asked top bureaucrats to identify concrete goals to be achieved by 2022, particularly focussing on the development of 100 most backward districts in a mission mode through short time frames.

Modi, while interacting with all the secretaries to the government of India, asked them to rise above the "administrative mechanisms of earlier centuries" and work beyond the "silos" of their respective ministries for the development of the country.

He told them that they had an opportunity to transform the lives of one-sixth of humanity, a statement issued by the Prime Minister's Office (PMO) said.

Underlining that institutions must be made "outcome-oriented", the Prime Minister asked the bureaucrats to identify concrete goals to be achieved by 2022, the 75th anniversary of Independence.

He called for a mission mode approach to the 100 most backward districts in India and said specific goals should be set on various parameters in definite short time frames for these districts, the PMO said.

While asking the bureaucrats not to work in silos, Prime Minister Modi said the some of the best results in the last three years had been achieved when the entire government machinery worked in unison, as a team.

In this regard, he cited examples such as financial inclusion (Jan Dhan Yojana) and universal immunization (Mission Indradhanush), the PMO said.

On 'Swachhta Abhiyan', the prime minister said, "the biggest groundswell of support has come from the people, and that is driving change at the administrative level."

Turning to the planned roll-out of the Goods and Services Tax (GST) regime from July 1, he said it would mark a "turning point" in the country's history. He asked the secretaries to proactively prepare for this transformation, to ensure a smooth transition, the statement said. The prime minister told the bureaucrats that 'the world is looking at India differently today and this is a unique opportunity which should not be missed. Let us build mechanisms to meet global expectations.'

Ministers Rajnath Singh, Arun Jaitley, Sushma Swaraj and Nitin Gadkari also addressed the secretaries.

Earlier, the secretaries made some suggestions on various sectors of governance, the PMO said.

Indian music unites country by breaking social barriers: Modi

NEW DELHI: Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Monday said that Indian music, in all its forms, unites the country by breaking social barriers and spreading the message of togetherness.

Stressing that Indian music sets the base for the country's "Ganga-Jamuni tehzeeb", he said its majesty, magic and mysticism, positively effects an individual's thoughts.

"Indian music, whether it is classical, folk or filmy, has always worked for unity in the country by breaking all social barriers," Modi said through video conferencing at the fifth International Convention of SPIC MACAY (Society for the Promotion of Indian Classical Music And Culture Amongst Youth) at IIT Delhi here. It has always spread the message of togetherness by breaking all walls of religion and caste.

Our classical music is the best medium to gain peace and experience calmness, he said. Emphasising on the relevance of Indian music and its diversity, the prime minister said, "Hindustani music of the north, Carnatic music of the south, Rabindra Sangeet of Bengal, Jyoti Sangeet of Assam and Sufi music of Jammu and Kashmir, all these musical traditions set the base of our Ganga-Jamuni tehzeeb."

"Our diversity is our strength," Modi said, adding students of one state can learn songs in other regional languages.

"Indian music will help us in realising the goal of 'Ek Bharat Shresth Bharat' (One India, Best India)," he said. Stressing that it is important for the younger generation to know and understand India's rich cultural and musical heritage, the prime minister said these days the youth are less aware about Indian classical music and instruments.

"This is a matter of concern for our country, as no nation can succeed by ignoring its heritage," he said.

"There is one type of music which will make your body move and then there is Indian music which will make your heart dance. Music is art, a livelihood. But, in Indian context, it is spirituality, a way of life," Modi said.

24 charred to death, 14 suffer burns as UP bus catches fire

OUR CORRESPONDENT

BAREILLY (UP): At least 24 passengers were charred to death and 14 suffered burns when a state-run bus burst into flames after crashing into a lorry on the national highway here early Monday.

The Uttar Pradesh State Road Transport Corporation bus, carrying 41 passengers from Delhi, was on its way to Gonda in eastern Uttar Pradesh when the accident took place near Bada bypass on NH 24, over 250 km from the national capital. The bodies were so badly charred that doctors found it difficult to determine the gender of the victims. DNA tests would be conducted to identify the victims.

"The death toll has risen to 24. Besides, 14 others are suffering from serious burn injuries," senior Uttar Pradesh minister Rajesh Agarwal told reporters here.

Initially the number of those injured was placed at 15, but the name of one more passenger was added to the list taking the number to 16, of whom two died during treatment.

Three passengers escaped with minor injuries.

Senior Superintendent of Police Jogendra Kumar said, "The accident involving a bus of UPSRTC and a truck occurred between 1.00 AM and 1.30 AM," he said.

The passenger bus caught fire after colliding with a truck on National Highway 24 at Bareilly, Uttar Pradesh after the collision which led to the fire.

"Around 5.45 AM, we received 22 bodies from the accident site. The bodies are charred beyond recognition. It is difficult to even determine the gender of the people," said Dr Shailesh Ranjan of the Bareilly district hospital.

The number of male and female passengers who died in the accident would be clear only after the post-mortem, Chief Medical Officer, Bareilly, Dr Vijay Yadav, said.

Agarwal, who flew in here from Lucknow in a helicopter on the instructions of Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath to supervise relief operations, said, "A DNA test will be performed on all bodies."

He was accompanied by two of his ministerial colleagues Swatantradev Singh and Brijesh Pathak. The driver of the bus is also among the deceased, while the conductor received serious injuries.

The driver of the truck (UP-25 BT-5337), which was coming from Shahjehanpur, was later arrested.

State to provide security to victim's kin, SC told

MPOST BUREAU

NEW DELHI: The Centre on Monday told the Supreme Court that parents of a youth, who was killed in a road rage in 2011 in Manipur involving the son of Chief Minister N Biren Singh, will be provided security by the state government.

The state government also informed the apex court that the parents of victim Irom Roger would be provided round-the-clock security by Manipur Rifles at their residences.

Additional Solicitor General Maninder Singh told the vacation bench of Justice Deepak Gupta that an affidavit has been filed by the state government stating that orders have already been issued to provide round the clock security to Irom Chitra Devi and Irom Lokendra Singh.

He said even advocate Utsav Bains, who is pursuing the case in Manipur High Court on behalf of the victim's parents, will also be provided security if he visits Imphal in connection with the case and added that on June 3, an order in this regard was issued by the Inspector General of Police.

In an affidavit filed before the apex court, Manipur Chief Secretary O Nabakishore Singh denied the allegation that at the instance of the chief minister, the administration including police were obstructing the Iroms from approaching the high court to challenge the conviction of Ajay Meetai for lesser offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder.

The ASG also said that the five allegations, including that the chief minister was abusing his official positions to obstruct the parents from approaching court, have been found to be false.

The Manipur Chief Secretary in his affidavit said that the allegations levelled that administration was acting in "high-handed and arbitrary manner" was meant "solely to malign" the chief minister.

On May 29, the apex court asked the Centre to consider giving security cover to the parents of the youth.

The Manipur government had told the court that it does not have any problem in providing security to the parents of the youth who have alleged that they feared for their lives.

Meetai, son of the chief minister, has been awarded a five-year jail term under section 304 (culpable homicide not amounting to murder) of the IPC for firing at Roger on March 20, 2011, and killing him.

The incident had occurred after Roger had allegedly not allowed Meetai to overtake him in his SUV which had irked the chief minister's son.

Advocate Kamini Jaiswal, appearing, for Roger's parents of victim had earlier said that no one from Manipur has dared to file an appeal in the high court against the five-year jail term awarded to Meetai.

Transfer racket: Lt Colonel, accomplice sent to judicial custody

MPOST BUREAU

The two were produced before the court after the expiry of their three-day CBI custody.

Kohli, meanwhile, moved a bail plea submitting that since he was not required for a further probe, he should be released on bail.

During the proceedings, Public prosecutor Amit Kumar told the court the CBI had taken the voice samples of the two and conducted searches at the premises of some others in relation to the case.

Minister scales tree to make call seeking nurse for village

OUR CORRESPONDENT

BIKANER: Union Minister Arjun Ram Meghwal wanted to make a call—but he had to climb a tree to do so.

The remote Rajasthan village of Dholia presented a bleak picture of Digital India as the minister of state for finance discovered he could catch a mobile phone signal only after he had scaled the tree with the help of a ladder.

Meghwal had stopped by at the village near Sri Durgagarh town, 85 kms from Bikaner, on Sunday to ask the people about their problems.

When the locals urged the 63-year-old minister to direct the chief medical and health officer (CMHO) to appoint a nurse for the local medical centre, he asked his assistant to connect him to the CMHO. When he could not get through to the officer, a helpful man brought a ladder and placed it along a Khejdi tree.

Mantri ji, is par chadiya, tab lagega (Sir, it will work if you climb this)," local BJP leader Surendra Singh, who was present there, quoted the man as saying.

The minister smiled, climbed up the ladder and the call went through, Singh said. "They made me climb a tree

Union Minister of State for Finance Arjun Ram Meghwal climbs a tree to get proper network connectivity for a phone call in Bikaner and I can call only from here," Meghwal was hearing telling the CMHO. "Appoint a temporary ANM (Auxiliary nurse midwife) here tomorrow."

The locals clapped appreciatively when the minister hung up.

Meghwal later said he had visited the village from Bikaner—his constituency—in the general coach of a train to talk to ordinary people.

"I was in the village to speak to the people and address their issues, the former IAS officer said. He, however, refused to comment on the poor mobile network in the area.

Local leader Ramgopal Suthar said the area had such poor connectivity that people had to climb up trees or go on rooftops to catch mobile signals.

The locals told the ministers about problems related to the poor mobile network, fluoride in water and basic amenities. He assured them the problems would be addressed soon, Suthar said.

Meanwhile, Dholia is to get its nurse.

"The minister called me on Sunday and the necessary action (for hiring an ANM) is being taken," the CMHO, Dr Devendra, said on Monday.

Meghwal made news last year when he rode a bicycle to Parliament after the Delhi government implemented its odd-even traffic scheme.

HYDERABAD: Aiming to eliminate manual scavenging in Telangana through technology, the Hyderabad Metropolitan Water Supply and Sewerage Board (HMWS&SB) on Monday deployed 70 mini jetting machines in the city.

Telangana Municipal Administration and Urban Development Minister KT Rama Rao, who flagged off these machines at an event here, said the state government, as part of its 'Swachh Telangana' programme, has adopted technology to end manual scavenging. "Improving the working and living conditions of scavengers has been the priority for the government," Rao said, adding that he would see to it that manual scavenging ceases to exist in state.

HMWS&SB, in association with the DICCI, (Dalit Indian Chamber of Commerce and Industry) inducted the 70 mini jetting machines at a cost of Rs 20 crore and the machines were handed over to the 'scavenging labour turned entrepreneurs'.

"It is an initiative conceptualised to transform manual scavengers to entrepreneurs. This move enables the elimination of manual scavenging and convert labour into an entrepreneur," DICCI Founder Milind Kamble said. AGENCIES

London struck by terror, again

Merely days after the horrific bombing in Manchester, the United Kingdom witnessed its third terror attack since March on Saturday, when a non-descript van swerved off the road and mowed down pedestrians on London Bridge. A total of seven people were killed and 48 injured. Soon after this horrific episode, the van drove to the Borough Market in London, a popular tourist destination, and three armed men stepped out of the vehicle. As per eyewitness accounts, these assailants began attacking pedestrians with knives. One was reportedly seen charging towards a bar packed with people. Before these assailants could inflict any further harm, armed personnel from the London Metropolitan Police responded quickly to the scene and gunned them down. The attack took place merely five days before parliamentary elections in the United Kingdom on June 8. British Prime Minister Theresa May, however, reassured voters that elections would go ahead as per schedule. "It is time to say enough is enough," she expressed in a televised statement. "We cannot and must not pretend that things can continue as they are." There were calls for tougher counter-terror measures that could include longer jail sentences for certain offences and more stringent cyberspace regulations, even though the British government has aggressively monitored Muslims it believes could orchestrate attacks. In fact, a leading UK news publication reported earlier this year that British intelligence is actively surveilling 23,000 potential jihadists. Her opponent in the elections and leader of the Labour Party, Jeremy Corbyn, meanwhile, responded that the UK needs to have "some difficult conversations" with Saudi Arabia and other Gulf states, saying they have "funded and fuelled extremist ideology". "We have to get serious about cutting off the funding to these terror networks, including ISIS here and in the Middle East," Corbyn said. There are two aspects of the attack that this editorial would like to address—the London police's quick response, and the hypocrisy of Western governments in dealing with the threat of Islamist extremism.

Reports indicate that it took the London Metropolitan Police just eight minutes from the start of the London Bridge attack to neutralise the three terrorists. By any measure, this is a reflection of the great speed and effectiveness with which the police responded to a live terror attack and ended the atrocity before it escalated any further. Their success on Saturday was down to learning from similar terror-related incidents in the past, rigorous training and the necessary resources. London is no stranger to terrorist attacks, from the IRA-orchestrated bombing in 1993 to the 7/7 bombings in 2005. However, what has changed since then is the nature of terror attacks. Counter-terror experts marked the 26/11 Mumbai terror attacks (2008) and Paris attacks in December 2015 as seminal events in establishing a new template for such future acts of barbarism. In the age of increased cyber surveillance, it is tough for terrorists to pull off a 9/11-style of attack. Instead, small units of mobile, yet heavily armed and motivated attackers are unleashed on vulnerable public spaces with the aim of killing as many people as possible while causing chaos and mayhem in these areas. For security professionals, this is a nightmarish scenario. Fortunately, for London, its police have spent years preparing for such an incident ever since the Mumbai terror attacks in 2008. There was also an element of luck too as Saturday's assailants reportedly did not carry any firearms with them. Nonetheless, the skills they had acquired over the years did serve them well in responding quickly to this act of terror. Security professionals contend that the London police undertook several anti-terror exercises simulating terror attacks. One such simulation involved a scenario in which armed individuals unleash terror on a shopping mall. In these exercises, the emphasis was on responding to the terror threat as fast as possible without actually taking into cognizance their own safety or even tending to injured civilians. Speed is of the essence. Finally, of course, it's also about the resources to take on such security threats. There is an apparent escalation in the deployment of armed police officers, allied with ammunition and vehicles, following Saturday's events. Once known for its unarmed police, the city of London is now on lockdown. Despite all these measures, there remains a strong element of chance and surprise associated with such attacks that the police cannot entirely legislate for. "The terrorism situation in the UK is clearly in flux. At the moment, the only pattern when it comes to terrorist attacks is that there is no pattern. Last night's London attack appears to be in some ways a combination of the Westminster attack and the Lee Rigby murder. It differs greatly from the style of the May 22 Manchester attack. Nonetheless, members of the police will continue to prepare to deal with worst-case scenarios based on previous attacks that, undoubtedly, they hope will never materialise," wrote Steve Hewitt, a Senior Lecturer in the Department of History, University of Birmingham, in a recent column for The Conversation. On expected lines, the Islamic State has claimed responsibility for Saturday's attack. "A detachment of Islamic State fighters executed yesterday's London attack," said a statement posted on the militant group's Amaq media agency website. It is no secret that the Saudi Kingdom, backed by the supply of American arms, has played a pivotal role in aiding the surge of extremist Sunni ideologies and terror modules across the region, extending all the way to the Indian subcontinent. In 2014, Wikileaks released a 2014 email from Hillary Clinton, acknowledging that US-backed regimes in Saudi Arabia and Qatar have supported transnational terror groups like the Islamic State. "We need to use our diplomatic and more traditional intelligence assets to bring pressure on the governments of Qatar and Saudi Arabia, which are providing clandestine financial and logistic support to ISIL and other radical Sunni groups in the region," the document states, ignoring the fact that Washington played a pivotal role in spawning the creation of ISIS. In fact, in another leaked email, Clinton also admits that "the Saudis have exported more extreme ideology than any other place on earth over the course of the last 30 years." It is imperative to note that when it comes to hobnobbing with the Saudi regime, both Republicans and Democrats are equal offenders, as recent Wikileaks disclosures suggest. Closer to home, the Arabian kingdom is also a primary source of funds for Islamist militant groups like the Afghan Taliban and Lashkar-e-Taiba. Nonetheless, both the British and American establishment continues to sell arms and buy oil from the Saudi kingdom, allowing it to further fuel atrocities in war-torn nations like Yemen. In fact, reports indicate that the British government is suppressing an inquiry commissioned by May's predecessor, David Cameron, looking into the foreign funding of extremist Islamist groups. Given that the British government just signed £3.5 billion (US$4.51 billion) worth of arms export licenses to Saudi Arabia, the suppression of the report's findings is nothing short of a scandal. "While Saudi Arabia spends countless millions promoting fear of Iran to distract from its global export of Wahhabism — which inspires the extremist ideology of Al Qaeda, the so-called Islamic State and many other terrorist groups wreaking havoc from Karachi to Manchester — Iran has been aiding the victims of extremism in Iraq and Syria," says Iran's Foreign Minister Mohammed Javed Zarif, in a column for The New York Times. It's time the British government acknowledged this fact, reconfigures its relationship with dictatorial regimes sponsoring extremist ideologies and groups to get to the heart of the matter. More surveillance will mean nothing without and requisite follow-up measures on foreign policy.

Diplomacy in difficult times

Modi's four-nation Europe tour best timed

Prime Minister Narendra Modi's four-nation Europe tour that ended on June 3 couldn't have possibly been timed better. A series of global events — from deadly terrorist attacks in the UK and Afghanistan, and President Donald Trump's decision to pull the United States out of the Paris climate agreement — coinciding with the Prime Minister's diplomatic mission only strengthened his resolve seeking stronger bilateral and multilateral cooperation on security, economy, and environment protection. Almost toeing Modi's meeting with German Chancellor Angela Merkel in Berlin, last week, was Chinese Prime Minister Li Keqiang, seeking to push China and the European Union closer. It was in a week during which a Europe-US rift on the Paris deal and other issues, including NATO funding by members, seemed to widen. Both Modi and Li Keqiang pledged their full commitment to the Paris agreement. Nearly 200 countries agreed to the 2015 Paris deal to curb climate-changing emissions. After President Trump's announcement last week, the US joined a very rarified club outside the climate agreement with just two other members, Syria and Nicaragua.

Both Modi and Li Keqiang were committed to the reduction of carbon footprint in their respective countries to save the global environment and the future generation. This is despite the fact China is the world's biggest producer and guzzler of environment-damaging fossil fuel. The combined raw coal production from China's designated large coal companies with annual turnover of at least 20 million yuan (about $2.9 million) stood at 3.36 billion tonnes in 2016, according to its National Bureau of Statistics (NBS). On the contrary, India, the world's third-largest coal producer, mined less than 650 million tonnes of raw coal, last year. India is going for battery operated cars in a big way to cut consumption of petroleum, its biggest item of import. The USA, the world's largest CO2 emitter accounting for almost 28 per cent of the global emission, mined around 980 million short tons of coal in 2016, down from its peak level of 1.72 billion short tons in 2008.

While Modi's climate commitment was highly appreciated by both Merkel and French President Emmanuel Macron, European leaders seem to remain concerned about China's hegemonic ambitions in Asia and other parts of the world — for example, building 'New Silk Road', claim over South China Sea, its massive strategic investment in south and south-east Asia and almost muted response to North Korea's aggressive ballistic missile programme. Modi's call for global cooperation on terrorism, climate control, and freedom of navigation for peace was seen as an honest effort. It won the heart of all the European leaders he met. They also appreciated the logic put forward by the Indian Prime Minister as a win-win situation for everyone wanting to 'make in India'. European leaders took note of the fact the foreign direct investment (FDI) inflows into India in 2016 jumped 18 per cent to a record $46.4 billion, at a time when global FDI inflows fell by an overall 13 per cent. Narendra Modi-Angela Merkel meet inked 18 MoUs, fast track German investments, German loan assistance of over one billion euros for India's solar projects in the next five years besides an existing assistance of over one billion Euros for India's Green Energy Corridor.

Finally, Prime Minister Modi's frank interactions with Russian Federation President Vladimir Putin proved to be a great success. It took place at a time when a few misgivings seemed to brew up about Russian assistance to Pakistan. Russia's "trust-based" ties with India will not be diluted by Moscow's growing relations with Pakistan and others, asserted President Vladimir Putin. He described Russia's ties with India as something 'very special'. Putin said there is no other country in the world that Russia has "deep cooperation" in delicate areas such as missiles. No matter from where a terror threat comes, it is unacceptable, and Russia will always support India in the fight against terror, Putin said adding that Russia does not have any close military relations with Pakistan. Russia is respectful toward all Indian interests, said Putin.

The formal and informal talks between the two heads of states sought to enhance the special relationship to the next level. Modi was the guest of honour at this year's three-day Saint Petersburg Economic Forum -- Russia's answer to Davos -- where Putin explained how Russia had turned the page on a brutal recession caused by low oil prices and sanctions over Ukraine. India and Russia signed St Petersburg Declaration for enhanced ties across the board. Modi said 70 years of India-Russia relations had seen remarkable cooperation and convergence on the main issues. Modi said the 18th annual India-Russia summit was very productive, adding new vigour to India-Russia relations. On record, India and Russia signed an agreement for setting up of Units 5 and 6 of Kudankulam Nuclear Power Plant in Tamil Nadu. At the CEOs Forum, President Putin said Russia would continue to increase investments in India.

Admittedly, it is entirely to the credit of the Prime Minister's Office (PMO) and of the Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) that Modi's visit to Germany, France, Spain, and Russia came at such a crucial time when global diplomacy is put under severe test amidst grave concern over growing terrorism and the future of the Paris climate accord. In the end, India emerged in Europe as a trusted partner to fight the evils and strengthen the global peace and economic stability. Sadly though, the terrible terrorist attacks in Kabul's diplomatic enclave and at Manchester musical concert took place around the time of the Prime Minister's Europe visit. However, these events further stressed the need for a more meaningful co-operation among powerful nations to fight terrorism and terrorist groups, operating out of multiple epicentres from Mindanao to Pakistan, Afghanistan and parts of middle-east. India has consistently been combating terrorism exported mostly from Jihadist groups in Pakistan. India's concern was well appreciated by the heads of four nations Modi interacted with.

BETTER ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS

The rate of increase in crime against women is so dismal that it has virtually desensitised people to the horrendousness of it. One unfortunate and infamous incident (December 2012) may have caused immense public outrage but it did nothing of lasting consequence. An incident of crime against women is nothing more than a news report. Pointless discussions over why others are not treated as seriously as Nirbhaya will do nothing to help matters. What we need terribly is not just laws, but serious deterrent laws against crime against women and sensitisation to it.

A necessary requirement

Integrating weather reporting in India is the big challenge, explains Raghu Murtugudde

As the advent of the 2017 summer monsoon over mainland South Asia showed once again, Indian meteorologists have become highly accurate in their forecasts. Gone are those Jerome K. Jerome days when you left your umbrella at home if the Meteorological Department predicted rain. Now the weather office can even anticipate a relatively unpredictable phenomenon such as a dust storm in the north Indian summer. It may not be as useful for forecasts more than a week in advance, but it's far better than before.

Farmers all over India -- especially those who do not have irrigation facilities -- are now using the agricultural meteorology (Agrimet) service of the India Meteorological Department, and they can get crucial information such as rainfall forecast over the next week through text messages on their phones. There is a lot that can and should be done to extend the scope of these weather predictions to large-scale hydrological predictions, both short- and long-term so that farmers and administrators can plan for the more frequent and more severe floods and droughts that are occurring in South Asia because of climate change.

Information about water flow in rivers is now available through a water resources information system (WRIS), but that has severe limitations due to regulatory issues -- there is no information available to the public about real-time water flow in trans-boundary rivers, thanks to an outdated law. This means there is no real-time water flow information available in the public domain from the three largest river basins in the country -- those of the Indus, Ganga, and Brahmaputra. This affects preparations to face floods.

Representational image

When it comes to drought preparedness, the situation is similar -- the information available is better than before but not good enough. The Central Water Commission now puts out in the public domain the water storage status of the 91 largest reservoirs in India and updates this information every week. This list still leaves out far too many water bodies that are crucial in determining if a region will have a drought.

The other crucial information needed to know if there will be a drought is the status of groundwater, but the latest status available on the website of the Central Ground Water Board is dated March 31, 2011. India is a country where over half the irrigation is from groundwater. It is the world's largest groundwater user.

There is another shortcoming -- India does not have enough monitoring stations to map the air pollution over the country. Most of the monitoring stations are scattered over a few large cities, though satellites show the most polluted zones to be in and around industrial townships and highways. Improving this observation system is crucial because air pollution -- in particular through aerosols -- affects local and regional weather patterns.

Improving these hydrologic and air quality information systems is essential to manage the critical food-water-energy nexus in a warming world. This will need integrated observations and predictions, which can be carried out through a Regional Earth System Prediction (RESP) framework. RESP treats the land, ocean, atmosphere, ecosystem, agriculture, and human interactions as components of one integrated system. This has to be used with an integrated observation system (IOS) that provides the data needed to build, validate and verify local and regional weather and long-term climate system models.

Despite some shortcomings, all the pieces are in place to build the RESP and IOS for India. The country now has of one of the best instrumental climate data records of a sufficiently long-time series covering a large-enough area. Empirical forecasts of the monsoon and various hydrologic variables such as stream flows are now advancing to dynamic forecasts. The research work going on at the Indian Institute of Tropical Meteorology in Pune now includes extending short-term weather forecasts to long-term climate predictions.

For information essential to manage the food-energy-water nexus, India needs two steps. The first is to improve its hydrologic and air quality information systems. The second is a national strategy to integrate the weather and climate information with the hydrologic and air quality information and manage this together. Then agricultural scientists can improve what they are doing right now to help farmers plan their crops.

To make such an integrated system useful, scientists also need to estimate the length of time to which forecasts from such an integrated system will be reliable. When all these are added up, integrating and managing this information may seem a daunting task, but it can be done. Building this capability is a necessary requirement to safeguard the nation's future.

Labour party gains momentum

“Our new govt will invest in future growth of many, not few”, says Corbyn

Jeremy Corbyn has emerged as the darling of the masses and in the last few days, addressed widely attended meetings getting a massive response. In comparison, the Conservative Party campaign has turned clueless and Prime Minister Theresa May is failing to respond to the points raised in the Labour’s manifesto

On June 8, Thursday, Britain will go to the polls. The leader of the Labour Party, Jeremy Corbyn, who started his campaign at the beginning of the last month as a “not winnable” candidate in the eyes of the corporate media, has emerged as the front-runner for the Prime Minister’s post as campaigning comes to a close. Corbyn’s election manifesto for a New Britain has attracted the common Britishers, and despite the endless slanders against him by the Conservative Party leaders and the media close to them, opinion polls are showing significant surge by the Labour Party.

Jeremy Corbyn, the self-declared socialist, has emerged as the darling of the masses and in the last few days, he has addressed widely attended meetings getting a massive response. In comparison, the Conservative Party campaign has turned clueless, and the Prime Minister Theresa May is failing to respond to the points raised in the Labour’s manifesto. In the last week of the campaign, the Conservatives have been outmanoeuvred by the Labour onslaught, and in desperation, they are only focusing on security as a result of recent terror attacks and claiming that the Labour cannot be trusted for that.

In a recent interview with the London-based daily Morning Star, the Labour’s PM candidate Jeremy Corbyn made his position clear on terror attacks by placing the issue in historical perspective. According to him, many experts in Britain’s intelligence and security services have pointed to the connections between wars the British govt has fought in other countries and terrorism at home. The assessment in no way reduces the guilt of those who attack our children. Those terrorists will forever be reviled and held to account for their actions, he said.

Elaborating, Corbyn says that an informed understanding of the causes of terrorism is an essential part of an effective response that will protect the security of the people. His frank view is that the war on terror is simply not working and there is need to look for a smarter way to reduce the threat from countries that produce threat and nurture terrorism.

As regards the Conservative Party charge that the people are not safe under him, Corbyn said that ensuring the safety of our communities demands adequately resourced action across many fronts. It means upholding and enforcing our rights, promoting community relations, supporting our emergency services, tackling and preventing crime, and protecting us from danger, including threats of terror and violence. Only a Labour government will meet these challenges. As mentioned in the manifesto, Labour will recruit 10,000 more police officers, 3,000 extra firefighters, as well as additional prison officers and border guards.”

Labour will also legislate to ensure safe staffing levels in the NHS, including for our ambulance services. Labour will also increase staffing levels at the security and intelligence agencies to better ensure our collective safety.

Defending the Labour stand on public utilities, the Labour leader said, public utilities like water and energy have been given away, often to foreign companies and state-run firms. Profits have gone to the shareholders, while the prices we pay, have increased and the quality of service has often deteriorated. Enough is enough of this rip-off.

“Compare your experience of services run by and in the interests of the public – like our NHS, police, and armed services – and the privatised rail, energy, water, and bus services. Remember when recruitment for the Olympics was outsourced to G4S, which was paid millions of our money for it and then bodged the job? The armed services had to step in and sort it out. Labour will take back control of what belongs to us – so we, the many, not the few, can benefit.”

According to Corbyn, this will be a sound investment for the British people because privatisation has failed. Many countries around the world have public ownership of their utilities, and they run better than they do in Britain. The privatised water companies have paid out £18 billion ($23 billion USD) in dividends to private shareholders in the last ten years. In the last year, the privatised water companies paid out 1,000 times more in dividends to private shareholders than they paid in corporation tax. Under Labour’s plans, the British people, not private shareholders, would benefit from the sector’s profits. Water bills have risen 40 per cent above inflation since privatisation. With this investment, we can reduce water bills by around £100 ($129 USD) per year per household, the equivalent of a 25 percent reduction. Overall, the estimate is that bills could fall by £220 ($283 USD) a year across energy and water under our plans, he said.

As regards his socialist credentials, Corbyn said, “I have always stood up for what I believe in – the principles of equality, peace, and social justice. This is what keeps me going and is exactly what I’ll do as Prime Minister”

He defended the National Health Service by saying that “every family in Britain has relied on NHS at some stage in their life. It is the most civilised thing about our country. I am so proud of it and will always defend it and preserve its core founding principles. The Conservatives are failing our health service, which has been pushed into financial crisis and soaring deficits. Patients are facing longer waits, with hospitals overcrowded, understaffed, and threatened with closure. Labour will stand up for our NHS. We will always make sure the NHS has the funding it needs and will join up services from home to hospital with an appropriately integrated health and social care service. Labour created the NHS to care for us all, and now it’s time to care for the NHS. The choice is stark: a properly funded NHS under Labour or accelerating NHS privatisation and underfunding under the Tories”, Corbyn mentioned.

In conclusion, the Labour leader said “this election is about the kind of country we want Britain to be. The choice is between Labour’s plan to transform Britain for the many, not the few and a Conservative Party that has held people back and put the wealthy first. On June 8, let’s vote to move forward in the interests of the many.”

TB’s hidden links

Treatment must take into account associated mental health disorders

Apart from the mental health disorders that originate as a reaction to diagnosis and social stigma, there is another less studied aspect: drug-induced psychosis, depression, and suicidal tendencies. Many anti-TB drugs like cycloserine precipitate major depression, anxiety, or psychosis

Three years ago, 29-year-old Brihaspati Pandey came to New Delhi from Basti, Uttar Pradesh, to attend a two-day meeting on tuberculosis (TB). Pandey was taking treatment for pulmonary TB for about two months. After the first day, he went to his room and unpacked his medicines. “A health advocate colleague, who was sharing the room with me, asked me if I had TB,” he says. When Pandey replied in the affirmative, the colleague vacated the room immediately. “I developed an inferiority complex and started hiding my TB medicines. I even stopped taking medicines in front of anyone. Some of my family members also distanced themselves when they learnt of my condition,” adds Pandey.

The stigma associated with TB patients not only hinders adherence to treatment but also adds to the stress and leads to mental disorders. According to a report by the World Health Organization (WHO), the prevalence of mental disorders, including depression and anxiety, among TB patients is estimated to be between 40 and 70 per cent.

A study published in the International Journal of Tuberculosis and Lung Diseases in 2008 says that the stigma affects the quality of patients’ lives and the effectiveness of TB medicines. The overall stigma index is the highest for India, the study found. However, there is little research and focus on the impact of the disease on mental health in India, and these cascading health problems have not been incorporated in TB treatment protocols. These findings assume significance as India accounts for more than one-fourth of the global TB cases and deaths. In 2015 alone, there were 2.8 million new cases and 0.47 million deaths due to TB.

Intrinsic relationship

“The connection between TB and mental health starts right at the initial phase of diagnosis,” says Beena Thomas, a scientist with the National Institute for Research in Tuberculosis, Chennai. Irrespective of the literacy status of people, the perception and stigmatisation around TB influence the patient’s initial reaction to the diagnosis.

It also matters how the health practitioner discloses the news to the patient, and how the patient discloses it to the family. “All these factors impact mental health. If the family’s reaction is negative, it will impact the patient’s mental health. We still find that irrespective of one’s education, knowledge, and awareness about TB are not what they should be,” says Thomas.

Apart from the mental health disorders that originate as a reaction to diagnosis and social stigma, there is another less studied aspect: drug-induced psychosis, depression and suicidal tendencies. Many anti-TB drugs like cycloserine precipitate major depression, anxiety or psychosis, says Thomas. She advocates counselling right from the initial phase of diagnosis to not only help patients cope with the disease but also to help them understand the importance of adhering to the treatment. “Many patients tell us that if they had known that being irregular with treatment would lead them to multi-drug resistant TB, they would have adhered to the course,” says Thomas.

Take the case of 24-year-old Yasmeen (name changed), who lives in Tughlakabad village in New Delhi. She was diagnosed with the first category or drug-sensitive TB three years ago. The side-effects of the drugs, which included stomach discomfort, nausea, and frequent vomiting, forced her to stop taking medication for two months. When her health deteriorated, she got herself tested, and found that she had developed multi-drug resistant (MDR) TB. “No one told me that missing doses would make the disease stage a comeback in a severe form. Had I known, I would have never missed a single dose,” she says.

Call for counselling

“The lack of counselling services for TB patients is the biggest gap in the treatment protocol,” says Blessina Kumar, chief executive officer, Global Coalition of TB Activists. Kumar cites the successful example of the HIV programme where robust counselling is an integral part of the treatment. She says that replicating such good practices for TB patients has been a struggle because TB treatment is largely based on medicines. “The so-called softer areas like counselling, patient care, adherence and nutritional support are not part of the treatment protocol, so they usually take the back seat,” she says.

So far, the Revised National TB Control Program has been focused on screening and treatment with little focus on mental health. There is no official data on suicidal attempts by TB patients. Paucity of research is another area which needs attention. Data on cases of depression, anxiety, or other mental health issues among TB patients is also not available. However, the silver lining is that the country has belatedly woken up to the idea of integrating counselling in the TB control programme.

“We plan to appoint about 600 counsellors countrywide—one at every district centre for MDR-TB patients within a year. The process has already started. The project is being funded by the Global Fund for AIDS, TB, and Malaria,” says Sunil Khaparde, deputy director-general, TB, Central TB Division, Union Ministry of Health and Family Welfare. The Tata Institute of Social Sciences (TISS) is the technical partner in the project, which will train the counsellors. The initial phase of the project, called Saksham Pravaah, started in 2016 with the appointment of counsellors in Maharashtra, Gujarat, Rajasthan, and Karnataka.

“The initial progress has been to retain patients to continue treatment as also to bring back patients who had stopped treatment. Financial concerns are also one of the reasons for treatment default. That’s why counsellors of Saksham Pravaah link needy patients to social protection services and programmes like nutrition support and widow pension—both from government and non-governmental agencies,” says Shweta Bajaj, senior programme manager, Saksham, TISS.

Saudi Arabia is accusing Qatar of supporting terrorism and sectarianism. In other news, the pot has called the kettle black.

Iran blames Trump for escalating Qatar diplomatic crisis

TEHRAN: Iran has accused the US of setting the scene for the escalating Gulf diplomatic crisis during President Donald Trump's recent trip to the Saudi Arabia. "What is happening is the preliminary result of the sword dance," Hamid Aboutaleb, deputy chief of staff of Iran's President Hassan Rouhani, tweeted, in a reference to a traditional ceremonial dance that took place during Mr Trump's visit to the Saudi capital of Riyadh last month. Saudi Arabia, Egypt, the United Arab Emirates and Bahrain, as well as the Western-recognised governments of Yemen and Libya, severed their ties with Qatar on Monday, accusing it of supporting terrorism. "[Qatar] embraces multiple terrorist and sectarian groups aimed at disturbing stability in the region, including the Muslim Brotherhood, Isis and al-Qaeda, and promotes the message and schemes of these groups through their media constantly," Saudi state news agency SPA said. Iran, which Trump singled out as a key source of funding and support for extremist groups during his inaugural foreign trip, is the secondary target of Monday's decision by Saudi Arabia and its allies. The decision of the tiny energy rich country's neighbours to cut off its land, sea and air routes to the outside world is a "violation of its sovereignty," a statement from Qatar's foreign ministry said. Doha has denied supporting militant groups. It described the crisis as "absolute fabrications".

Isolated Qatar: Middle-East split to affect flights, food and football

DUBAI: Four Arab nations severed diplomatic relations with Qatar on Monday, moving swiftly to isolate the small but influential country after accusing Qatar's rulers of supporting terrorist factions and stoking regional conflicts. The four countries — Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, Egypt and Bahrain — released separate and apparently coordinated statements saying they would cut air, sea and land links with Qatar, which hosts a forward base for the US military's Central Command and is home to the widely watched Al Jazeera network. The feud — the most serious in decades among some of the region's most key Western allies — has been simmering for years as Qatar increasingly flexed its political muscle across the region, including backing for the Muslim Brotherhood. The diplomatic break came just weeks after President Trump met with Arab and Muslim leaders in Saudi Arabia and called for a unified front against extremism and regional influence by rival Iran. The visit was hailed by the Trump administration as a success, but analysts in the region said at the time that it seemed likely to aggravate local disputes. But what might this mean for Qatar's economy and people doing business there? With a population of about 2.7 million people, this tiny nation on the north-east coast of the Arabian Peninsula is trying to punch above its weight. People know about it thanks in part to its national airline (Qatar Airways), its international news station (Al Jazeera) and through sport (notably winning the right to host the 2022 football World Cup and being a former sponsor of perhaps the world's most famous club, Barcelona). And with a distinctive skyline in the capital Doha, it has succeeded in attracting multinationals to open offices there. FLIGHTS: Abu Dhabi's Etihad Airways and Dubai's Emirates are suspending all flights to and from Doha, starting from Tuesday morning. Both carriers operate four daily return flights to Doha. Budget carriers FlyDubai and Air Arabia are also cancelling routes to Doha, with other airlines, including Bahrain's Gulf Air and Egyptair expected to follow suit. It comes after Saudi Arabia, the UAE, Bahrain and Egypt all said they would stop flights in and out of Qatar, and close their airspace to the country's airline, Qatar Airways. And it is Qatar's flag carrier that risks being the biggest loser. Its flights to places like Dubai, Abu Dhabi, Riyadh and Cairo will stop. That is dozens of flights a day. Qatar Airways has already said it is cancelling its services to Saudi. It said: "All customers booked on affected flights to and from the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia will be provided with alternative options, including the option of a full refund on any unused tickets and free rebooking to the nearest alternative Qatar Airways network destination." But being banned from large chunks of airspace in the region would also cause a major problem, forcing it to alter flight paths, inevitably adding time to some flights. Qatar Airways' growth has come through positioning itself as a hub airline, connecting Asia and Europe via Doha. Egypt said it will suspend air links with Qatar from Tuesday, after it and other Arab states cut diplomatic ties with the Gulf emirate and accused it of supporting extremism. The decision to "halt all flights between Egypt and Qatar" would take effect from 0400 GMT tomorrow and continue "until further notice", the aviation ministry said. British Airways is one of a number of European airlines to fly to Doha. It said on Monday that it will "continue to offer a full schedule. FOOD: Desert states, by their nature, struggle to grow food. And food security is a particular issue for Qatar given the only way in by land is a single border with Saudi Arabia. Every day hundreds of lorries cross the border, and food is one of the main supplies. About 40% of Qatar's food is believed to come via this route. Saudi Arabia has said it will close that border and when the lorries stop, Qatar will become reliant on air and sea freight. "It will immediately cause inflation and that will directly affect normal Qatari people," says Nuseibeh. "If things start costing significantly more, then you're going to see the Qatari people putting increasing political pressure on the ruling family for either a change of leadership or a change of direction." He also points out that many poorer Qataris make daily or weekly trips to Saudi to do their grocery shopping as it is cheaper. Clearly a closed border means this will no longer be possible. FOOTBALL: One of the areas that could feel the impact is Qatar's hosting of the World Cup, football's biggest tournament, in five years' time. "This is a massive escalation in pressure on Qatar," said Kristian Ulrichsen, a Gulf analyst with the Baker Institute at Rice University in Houston. "I think it will really have an impact if it lasts any time." Since being controversially chosen by FIFA in 2010 as the host,

Qatar has maintained that it is a politically secure nation despite its location in a volatile region. Doha has also emphasised that the tournament serves the entire Gulf, and not just the tiny gas-rich emirate. But current events may challenge those notions, Ulrichsen said. "One of its pitches (to secure the World Cup) was that Qatar is one of the most stable countries in the Middle East," he told AFP. With that potentially called into question — and the fact that there are other countries which could host the event at little notice — organisers may be getting anxious, Ulrichsen said. "Qatar will know that there are alternatives, so they will be looking over their shoulder," he said. Suggestions have been made previously that the United States, one of the countries that lost the race for the 2022 competition to Qatar, could take over hosting duties if necessary. PEOPLE: The move to end ties bans citizens from Saudi, Egypt, Bahrain, the United Arab Emirates, Libya and Yemen from travelling to Qatar, living there or passing through it, according to the Saudi government. People affected have 14 days to leave. Meanwhile Qataris will have the same amount of time to get out of Saudi Arabia, the UAE and Bahrain. More significant though would be if Egypt issued a similar ban. According to one recent report about 180,000 Egyptians live in Qatar — with many involved in engineering, medicine and law as well as construction. A loss of that workforce would pose a problem for both local and international firms operating in the Gulf state.

Moon orders probe into unreported THAAD missile deployment

SEOUL: South Korean President Moon Jae-in on Monday ordered an additional probe into an unreported deployment of four more mobile launchers of the US missile shield in the country. Moon ordered an investigation into the "intentional" omission of report to him about the deployment of four THAAD mobile launchers at an unidentified US military base in South Korea, Xinhua news agency reported. The President was later briefed on the investigation findings that showed Wi Seung-ho, Chief of the Defence Ministry's National Defence Policy Office, ordered officials to omit the deployment of four more THAAD launchers from a document to the presidential Blue House. We will be excluded from relevant defence affairs, while other relevant Defence Ministry officials will be subjected to further investigations, according to the Blue House. President Moon also ordered a separate probe into the Defence Ministry, that is suspected of avoiding the environmental assessment of THAAD at a golf course in Seongju county, North Gyeongsang province. Seoul and Washington decided in July last year to deploy one THAAD battery in southeast South Korea. The site was altered in last September into the golf course at a small village. About two weeks before the presidential by-election on May 9, two mobile launchers, the radar and other heavy equipments were transported in the middle of night to the golf course. The hurried installation boosted speculation.

Pakistan Senate to debate ICJ verdict on Kulbhushan Jadhav case

ISLAMABAD: Pakistan's Senate on Monday decided to debate the ICJ order staying the execution of Indian national Kulbhushan Jadhav after a senator of a hardline party tabled a motion saying the verdict hinted that Islamabad was not fully prepared to fight the case. Senate Chairman Raza Rabbani admitted the adjournment motion by Jamaat-I-Islami Senator Sirajul Haq for regular debate, and issued notices to the foreign ministry and the attorney general to brief the upper house of the parliament. Haq made a forceful plea in the Senate about his motion, saying the judgment by the International Court of Justice to stay Jadhav's death sentence hinted that Pakistan was not well-prepared to fight the case brought by India. "These and similar statements have been passed around, which are creating confusion," Haq said. On May 18, the ICJ in a setback to Pakistan restrained it from executing Jadhav, 46, who was convicted of espionage and sentenced to death by a Pakistani military court after a secret trial. India took the matter to the ICJ, citing that it had been denied consular access to Jadhav in violation of the Vienna Convention.

US businessman admits making illegal exports to Pakistan

NEW YORK: A 43-year-old business owner in the US has pleaded guilty to exporting products without a license to Pakistani atomic and space agencies in violation of US federal laws and faces up to 20 years in prison. Imran Khan, of North Haven, Connecticut, waived his right to be indicted and pleaded guilty on June 2 in Hartford federal court to violating US export law, US Attorney for the District of Connecticut Deirdre Daly said. According to court documents and statements made in court, from at least 2012 to December 2016, Khan and others were engaged in a scheme to purchase goods that were controlled under the Export Administration Regulations (EAR) and export those goods without a license to Pakistan, in violation of the EAR. Khan conducted business as Brush Locker Tools or as Kausar Enterprises-USA. When asked by US manufacturers about the end-user for a product, Khan either informed the manufacturer that the product would remain in the US, or he completed an end-user certification indicating that the product would not be exported. After the products were purchased, they were shipped by the manufacturer to Khan's North Haven residence or to a business owned by him. The products were then shipped to Pakistan on behalf of either the Pakistan Atomic Energy Commission (PAEC), the Pakistan Space and Upper Atmosphere Research Commission (SUPARCO) or the National Institute of Lasers and Optronics (NILOP), all of which were listed on the US Department of Commerce Entity List, the Justice Department said in a statement.

Germany, Turkey fail to break deadlock over air base visit

ANKARA: Turkey on Monday refused to budge on its decision to refuse German lawmakers permission to visit troops stationed at a Turkish air base, saying it expected "positive steps" on Turkey's requests for Germany to crackdown on Kurdish rebels and alleged coup plotters. Speaking at a joint news conference with his visiting German counterpart, Turkish Foreign Minister Mevlut Cavusoglu said Turkey would allow German legislators to visit a NATO base in the central province of Konya, but not Incirlik Air Base, where some 270 German troops are stationed with Tornado reconnaissance jets and a refueling plane. The German troops are part of the international coalition against the Islamic State group. "At the moment, a visit to Konya is possible but not to Incirlik," Cavusoglu said during the news conference with Germany's Sigmar Gabriel. "In the future, if the conditions are there and there is normalization (a visit to) Incirlik may be possible." "If Germany takes positive steps, we will always take two (positive) steps. But we cannot ignore the current situation," he said. Turkey blocked the visit to Incirlik, angered by German authorities' decision to grant asylum to soldiers and other individuals that Turkey accuses of participating in last year's failed coup and has accused of harboring Kurdish militant groups.

Hijab-clad Aus school girls forced to leave expo

MELBOURNE: Hijab-clad Muslim school students were allegedly forced to leave a career expo in Australia after onlookers felt threatened by their "attire" in the wake of the Manchester suicide bombing. The schoolgirls were attending the career expo at the Perth Convention and Exhibition Centre (PCEC) last week, just days after the suicide bombing in Manchester that left 22 dead and dozens injured. Some people complained that the school children's hijabs were "making them feel uncomfortable after what happened in Manchester" and asked staff to have them removed from the venue,

WA reported on Monday. The PCEC confirmed the centre was contacted about an alleged incident involving discrimination against patrons on May 26 but denied that their staff were involved. The incident came just over a week after Salman Abedi killed 22 people in the suicide bomb attack in Manchester at an Ariana Grande concert. A mother of one of the students was quoted as saying that her 16-year-old daughter was at the Careers Expo at the Convention Centre last week when she and her school friends were told by their teacher that they had to pack up their lunch and leave.

‘Pak-origin man among three responsible for London attack’

LONDON: A Pakistani-origin man was among three knife-wielding militants responsible for carrying out the brutal London terror attack that killed seven people and injured 49, according to a media report. The man, identified as ‘Abz’ is believed to have been the ring-leader of the trio that carried out the horror attack at two London landmarks, The Mirror reported.

Abz, 27, is said to be from Barking in east London, was pictured lying on the ground after police swooped on the attackers on Saturday night and shot them dead in a flurry of 50 bullets. Seven people were killed and 49 injured when the trio rammed a van into pedestrians on London Bridge before stabbing revellers in bars in the nearby Borough Market.

Abz, a father of two children, appeared to pray to an Islamic State flag in a London park in a TV documentary about the behaviour and motivations of British extremists. Police are searching four houses in Barking and have made 12 arrests as part of their investigation into the atrocity. His neighbours said the Arsenal fan had been wearing the club's replica away shirt the day before the attack, matching the one worn by one of the suspects pictured lying on the ground with what appear to be canisters taped around his body. The terrorist was a home-grown jihadi who came from Pakistan as a child but was brought up in the UK, the report said.

The brother of one of the terrorists was a soldier, according to the Daily Mail. The killer, 27, found his brother dead aged twelve, and it has been suggested he was traumatised at this young age. His brother, however, volunteered for the Army Reserves. Counter terrorism police have made two fresh raids on addresses in east London in connection with Saturday's deadly terror attack in London. The Metropolitan

IS claims responsibility amid calls for increased attacks

LONDON: Isis has claimed responsibility for the London terror attack through its Amaq 'news agency'. A statement on the group's propaganda outlet said a "detachment" of its fighters had carried out the atrocity, in which seven people were killed and 48 were wounded. The three perpetrators, who have not yet been officially named, were shot dead at the scene by police just eight minutes after the first emergency call. Amaq's statement quoted 'sources', a phrase usually used for attacks inspired, rather than directly commissioned, by Isis. Meanwhile, British opposition leader Jeremy Corbyn on Monday backed calls for May to resign for reducing the number of police officers during her six years as interior minister.

tan Police said officers entered properties in Newham and Barking at 4.15am on Monday and "a number" of people had been detained. Searches were continuing at both addresses, police added.

Residents reported hearing "loud flash bangs and gunshots" in the early hours of Monday morning. Officers say they know the identities of the men who carried out the attack and will release the names "as soon as operationally possible".

Scotland Yard said seven women and five men aged between 19 and 60 were arrested under the Terrorism Act in Barking on Sunday. A 55-year-old man was later released without charge.

Defying Russia, Montenegro finally joins NATO

BUDVA: Once the Balkan stronghold of pro-Russian sentiments, tiny Montenegro is on Monday silently celebrating its entry into NATO in a historic turn that has made the Kremlin furious. Despite the Russian anger and a deep split within the nation of some 620,000 people over the issue, Montenegro is formally becoming the 29th member of the Western military alliance at a ceremony in Washington on Monday.

To get there, Montenegro has stood up against its former ally Russia, which has sought to maintain strong historic, political and cultural influence in the Slavic country it considers a special zone of interest. Bringing Montenegro into NATO further diminishes Russia's influence in south-east Europe, and blocks it from the so-called "warm seas" in Europe that could be used as staging grounds for military interventions in the Middle East.

The US State Department said Montenegro's membership "will support greater integration, democratic reform, trade, security, and stability with all of its neighbours." Russia has threatened economic and political retaliation, including a campaign to undermine the Montenegrin tourism industry, which relies heavily on Russian visitors. An estimated 200,000 Russians visit Montenegro a year and 80,000 Russians own property here.

Russia has also banned imports of Montenegrin wine and recently deported a ranking official from a Moscow airport. Russian foreign ministry spokeswoman Maria Zakharova recently warned potential Russian tourists that "there is an anti-Russian hysteria in Montenegro."

Donald Trump seeks ‘tougher’ travel ban, expedited hearing

WASHINGTON: Donald Trump has promised to impose travel restrictions on immigrants to the US "in any event", as the Supreme Court considers his failed attempt to introduce a ban on people from some Muslim-majority countries. The US President pressed his controversial travel ban plans on Monday morning following the weekend terror attack in London Bridge, calling for an expedited judicial review and urging his administration to seek a tougher version of the proposal.

"The Justice Dept. should have stayed with the original Travel Ban, not the watered down, politically correct version they submitted to SC," Trump, referring to the US Supreme Court, wrote in a series of tweets on the issue.

"The Justice Dept. should ask for an expedited hearing of the watered down Travel Ban before the Supreme Court - & seek much tougher version!" he wrote.

Meanwhile, Trump has doubled down on his criticism of London Mayor Sadiq Khan's response to the terror attacks in London over the weekend, attacking him for a misconstrued statement telling people that there is "no reason to be alarmed". Contrary to Trump's portrayal of that statement, Mr Khan had actually said that people in London shouldn't be alarmed by visibly increased police presence in the city, not that they should not be alarmed by the attacks.

Khan said that Trump's had "deliberately" taken his comments "out of context", which Trump tweeted was a "pathetic excuse". In Trump's eyes, the media covering the London attacks were "working hard to sell" Khan's "excuse," he wrote in a Tweet. The President sent out a series of tweets following the attack in which he called for the implementation of his controversial travel ban, even though it was not immediately clear how, if at all, a ban would be able to stop a similar attack in the US. Those tweets berating Khan have been widely condemned, and are in contrast to a statement from the US Embassy in London.

Trump's early morning tirade on Twitter attacked the US courts that have so far blocked both of his controversial bans, criticised his own Justice Department for not sticking with his original travel ban.

Putin: I didn't even really talk to Flynn

MOSCOW: Russian President Vladimir Putin said he hardly spoke to former national security adviser Michael Flynn during a 2015 dinner in Moscow.

The dinner - where the two men were seated next to each other - celebrated Russian state media outlet Russia Today (RT). "I didn't even really talk to him," Putin told NBC News' Megyn Kelly during an interview that will air Sunday at 7pm EST.

Putin explained that although he sat next to Flynn at the dinner, the two had limited contact. "I made my speech. Then we talked about some other stuff. And I got up and left," Putin said.

He added: "And then afterwards I was told, 'You know there was an American gentleman. He was involved in some things. He used to be in the security services ... that's it. I didn't even really talk to him'." That's the extent of my acquaintance with Flynn," Putin has also denied he had any compromising material about US President Donald Trump. "Well, this is just another load of nonsense," Putin said, when asked whether he had any damaging information on the Republican president. The remarks were the latest in a series of denials from Moscow that have had little impact so far on a political crisis in the United States over potential links between Russia and Trump's inner circle.

‘Dylan sends Nobel lecture required for prize money’

STOCKHOLM: Music icon and Nobel literature laureate Bob Dylan has delivered his Nobel lecture, the only requirement to claim the money that comes with the prize, the Swedish Academy said on Monday.

"The speech is extraordinary and, as one might expect, eloquent. Now that the lecture has been delivered, the Dylan adventure is coming to a close," Sara Danius, the permanent secretary of the Swedish Academy, which awards the prize, wrote in a blog post. In the speech, sent to the Academy with an audio link in which Dylan reads it aloud, the enigmatic rock star reflects on the possible links between his lyrics and literature.

"When I first received this Nobel Prize for Literature, I got to wondering exactly how my songs related to literature," Dylan said. He then cited musicians who inspired him - including Buddy Holly, whose music "changed my life" and made him want to write songs when he was a teenager - and the classic novels that made a big impression on him, including "Moby Dick", "All Quiet on the Western Front" and "The Odyssey". Dylan is the first songwriter to win the prestigious Nobel Literature Prize.

Japan arrests 14-year-old for creating ransomware

TOKYO: Japanese authorities on Monday arrested a 14-year-old boy for creating a ransomware virus similar to WannaCry which was responsible for global cyberattacks last month.

The boy, a student at a secondary school in Osaka prefecture, is accused of creating the ransomware - a malware, or malicious software programme that limits or prevents users from accessing the computer or files unless they pay a ransom - through free encryption software, Efe news reported. The student, who admitted to the allegations, then uploaded it to a foreign website and taught users of the platform to download and use it, according to sources quoted by the Kyodo news agency.

This ransomware, which has been downloaded 100 times, allowed the user to infect the victim's computer and asked for virtual currency as ransom, although the economic toll has not yet been confirmed, added the same sources. The young boy, who supposedly learned by himself how to create this type of programme, revealed to the investigating authorities that he only wanted to become famous, according to state television channel NHK.

His arrest comes after WannaCry's ransomware hit at least 150 countries and health centres in the UK, large companies in France and Spain, railways networks in Germany, public institutions in Russia and universities in China.

Some 600 Japanese companies, including Hitachi and Nissan, were affected by this cyberattack. Japanese IT security company Trend Micro has detected more than 65,000 ransomware attacks over the past year in Japan, a figure 10 times higher than that of the previous year.

GST to be economy's turning point: PM after review meet

NEW DELHI: Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Monday reviewed the preparations for the roll-out of the Goods and Services Tax (GST) regime from July 1 and said it will be "a turning point" in the country's economy.

Describing it as an "unprecedented" moment in the country's history, he said the creation of the one-nation, one-market and one-tax system would greatly benefit the common man.

He took stock of various elements involved in the roll-out and directed the officials that maximum attention be paid to cyber-security in IT systems linked to the GST, the Prime Minister's Office (PMO) said in a statement.

The meeting, which lasted for over two-and-a-half hours, was attended by Finance Minister Arun Jaitley, and top-most officials from the Ministry of Finance, the PMO and the Cabinet Secretary.

The prime minister said the implementation of GST from July 1 is the culmination of the concerted efforts of all stakeholders, including political parties, trade and industry bodies, the statement said. He described the GST as a "turning point for the economy, unprecedented in history", the PMO said.

During the course of the meeting, the prime minister specifically reviewed aspects of implementation such as IT readiness, HR readiness, training and sensitisation of officers, query handling mechanism, and monitoring, the statement said.

He was informed that GST systems such as IT infrastructure, training of officials, integration with banks, and enrolment of existing taxpayers will be in readiness well in time for the July 1 implementation date, it added. Information security systems were discussed in detail.

A Twitter handle - @ask-Gst_GOI has been started for real-time answering of queries.

An All India toll-free phone 1800-1200-232 has also been activated for this purpose. PII

Gold jewellery demand unlikely to be affected at 3% GST: Icra

NEW DELHI: The Government of India has announced a 3% tax on Gold Jewellery, in line with the 2%-6% rates indicated earlier in the draft Goods and Services Tax rules.

Under the present tax regime, jewellery retailers are levied a VAT of ~1% in most states (except Kerala, where 5% VAT is levied) on sales and an excise duty of 1% is levied on the input side (without tax credit).

This apart, a duty of 10% is levied on bullion imports and 15% on jewellery imports. Against the cumulative current tax rate of 2%, the final GST rate at 3% is higher, while the import duty will continue at prevalent rates.

ICRA expects the same to be passed on to end customers and the higher tax is not likely to cause any major disruption to the gold jewellery demand.

K Sri Kumar, Vice President and Co-Head, Corporate Ratings, ICRA, said, "Gold jewellery demand is expected to be favourable over the near-term with uptick in both rural and urban demand. Rural consumption will benefit from favourable monsoon guidance, likely rise in minimum support prices, rural employment guarantee scheme and waiver of farm loans in few states.

"Urban demand will gain traction from rising income levels, staggered pay revision for state government employees and pensioners and favourable demographic spread. The long term fundamentals of the industry remain strong driven by the cultural underpinnings in the country, evolving lifestyle, and growing disposable income."

Specifically, the organised retailers are expected to benefit at the cost of unorganised players as the overall supply chain is likely to be streamlined with the scheduled rollout of Goods and Services Tax.

In recent years, the market share of organised players have increased, due to factors like assurances on quality, purity, availability of a wider design range and rising preference for fashion jewellery. MPOST

Trai asks operators to launch data pack with 1-year validity

NEW DELHI: Telecom regulator Trai has asked telecom operators to launch at least one mobile Internet data pack that has higher validity of one year.

In August last year, the Telecom Regulatory Authority of India (Trai) had permitted increase in validity for mobile data packs to 365 days from up to 90 days. This was done to increase Internet usage in the country and also attract first-time users. However, telecom operators did not launch any such pack.

According to sources, Trai has now issued an "advisory" asking the operators to bring out at least one such mobile Internet pack, reflecting the higher validity that was permitted.

Meanwhile, Sector regulator Trai on Monday launched a new app - MyCall - that enables subscribers to rate the quality of a phone call.

"The application will help mobile phone users rate their experience about voice call quality in real time and help Telecom Regulatory Authority of India (Trai) gather customer experience data along with network data," Trai said.

After a call ends, a pop-up will appear requesting the user to rate the call based on their experience. The caller will have to select the rating in the form of stars and indicate whether the call was made indoor, outdoor or while travelling. Callers can also provide additional details such as noise or audio delay and mark a call drop, if they believe that is how the call got terminated.

The government and the regulator have refused to lower their guard on the issue of call drops, and have kept a close watch on call quality through initiatives like drive tests and automated call system. Last year, when instances of call drops spiked, the government and the regulator made a co-ordinated effort to tackle the issue through deliberations with the industry.

Besides, Trai has also upgraded its 'Do Not Disturb' app with new features like an intelligent spam detection engine and updates about action taken on complaints within the app.

At present, there is a framework for DND registry that allows telecom subscribers to block unwanted communication from telemarketers. Reaching out to such subscribers can result in a heavy fine for telemarketers. Trai has also rolled out an update to its MySpeed app, which allows customers to measure 3G/4G data speeds and send the results to the regulator. PII

May services sector PMI growth fastest in 4 months: Nikkei

NEW DELHI: Services sector activity in India grew at the fastest pace in four months in May riding piggyback on higher work orders as companies inducted more people to cope with greater workloads, a monthly survey said on Monday.

The Nikkei India Services Purchasing Managers' Index (PMI), which tracks services sector output on a monthly basis, rose from 50.2 in April to 52.2 in May.

The Nikkei India Services PMI posted above the critical 50.0 level, which separates growth from contraction, for the fourth month running in May.

Service providers took on extra staff in May in order to cope with greater workloads. Although the rate of job growth was modest, it was the fastest in almost four years. Job creation at services firms also mirrored expectations of output growth, with panelists mentioning new offerings, business expansion plans, more marketing and favourable government policies as the key factors supporting positive sentiment regarding the 12-month outlook.

However, there are worries surrounding an increasingly competitive environment that weighed on confidence of service providers and optimism was at a three-month low.

Meanwhile, the Nikkei India Composite PMI Output Index, that maps both the manufacturing and services sector activity, reached a seven-month high of 52.5 in May from 51.3 in April, as the stronger upturn in services sector counterbalanced the slowdown in growth of manufacturing orders.

On price rise, the report said, inflation rates were muted which was lower than long-run average. PII

Would favour a rate cut, hints FM

NEW DELHI: The government on Monday made a case for a lower interest rate regime citing low inflation as well as the need to revive investments and growth even as experts said the RBI may assess the impact of GST on prices before cutting policy rates.

The six-member Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) headed by RBI Governor Urjit Patel will meet on Tuesday and the day after for the Second Bi-monthly Monetary Policy Statement for 2017-18, with experts saying that a status quo on rates is likely.

Finance Minister Arun Jaitley said inflation has been under control for long and is likely to remain so on the back of good monsoon and unlikely spike in oil prices.

"...growth and investment need to improve. These are indicators which are available. Any finance minister under these circumstances would like a rate cut, the private sector would like a rate cut. But then when you entrusted it with the MPC,

I would rather wait for their decision," he told CNBC TV18.

Industry has been pitching for a rate cut to boost GDP growth which fell to 7.1 per cent in 2016-17, from 8 per cent in the previous fiscal. The Reserve Bank, however, may wait for the July 1 roll out of the GST and assess the impact of the new indirect tax regime on inflation before tinkering with the policy rates.

"I do not think RBI will cut repo rate in the upcoming policy. They will wait for CPI data before taking a call. The tone of the policy is likely to be dovish," Union Bank of India executive director Vinod Kathuria said.

The inflation data for July, to be released in August, will give an indication on the impact of Goods and Services Tax (GST) on prices. Retail inflation, based on Consumer Price Index (CPI), dropped to multi-year low at 2.99 per cent in April over last year, mainly due to lower cost of food items, including pulses and vegetables. CPI inflation was 5.47 per cent in April 2016.

At the same time, inflation based on the wholesale price index slipped to a four-month low of 3.85 per cent in April as both food articles and manufactured items showed cooling in prices.

"Given the inflation trajectory and as the liquidity is enough in the market, it is unlikely that there would be any rate cut this time. I think commentary of the policy will be benign," State Bank of India DMD and Chief Financial Officer Anshula Kant said.

As per official estimates, GST would bring down inflation by 2 per cent in the long run as the cascading effect of tax on tax would go. PII

India overtakes China to top global retail index

SINGAPORE: India has surpassed China to secure the top position among 30 developing countries on ease of doing business, according to a study that cited India's rapidly expanding economy, relaxation of FDI rules and a consumption boom as the key drivers.

The 2017 Global Retail Development Index (GRDI), now in its 16th edition, ranks the top 30 developing countries for retail investment worldwide and analyses 25 macroeconomic and retail-specific variables. India's rapidly expanding economy, easing of foreign direct investment (FDI) rules and a consumption boom are the key drivers for India's top ranking in the GRDI. The GRDI, titled 'The Age of Focus', ranks China in second place. Despite its slower overall economic growth, the market's size and the continued evolution of retail still make China one of the most attractive markets for retail investment.

"The study is unique in that it not only identifies the markets that are most attractive today, but also those that offer future potential," said the management consulting firm A T Kearney.

India's retail sector has been growing at an annual rate of 20 per cent. Total sales surpassed the $1 trillion-mark last year and the sector is expected to double in size by 2020. Rapid urbanisation and a growing middle class with higher income levels is driving up consumption across the country, the consultancy group said. The government's continued support to relax FDI regulations in key areas of the retail sector have provided further boost to its growth, it noted.

In the past year, the government has allowed 100 per cent foreign ownership in B2B e-commerce businesses and for retailers that sell food products. India's retail sector has also benefited from the rapid growth in e-commerce. It is projected to grow 30 per cent annually and reach $48 billion by 2020. PII

8 top cities' new home launches collapsed by 8% in last fiscal

NEW DELHI: Housing sector witnessed 8 per cent decline in new launches to 1,08,200 units in eight top cities during the last fiscal, mainly due to new real estate law and poor sales post demonetisation, according to a report.

In its latest report, property consultant Cushman & Wakefield said that the top 8 cities saw residential launches of about 25,800 units in the first quarter of 2017 calendar year, down 16 per cent from the year-ago period.

These eight cities are -- Delhi-NCR, Mumbai, Kolkata, Chennai, Bengaluru, Hyderabad, Pune and Ahmedabad. "Launches in the residential sector have declined by about 8 per cent during the period April 2016 to March 2017 compared to the same period in 2015-16," C&W said. The new home launches stood at 1,17,650 units in the previous year.

The consultant said that launches have seen a steady quarter on quarter decline for the last four quarters, "corresponding with the announcement of Real Estate Regulatory Act (RERA) 2016 in March last year and the demonetisation exercise in November 2016."

However, the share of affordable segment in total launches has improved to 30 per cent last fiscal compared to 25 per cent in the same period in 2015-16. The share of high-end and luxury segments fell to 11 per cent from 13 per cent during the same period.

"While sales have been weak across segments, it has been prominent in the high-end and luxury segments over the last quarters owing to demand-supply mismatches," C&W said in a statement.

On prices, the consultant said that rates fell in cities such as Delhi-NCR, Bengaluru and select markets in Mumbai in the first quarter of 2017 on combined impact of a prolonged slowdown in sales and the pressure of mounting inventory.

In Delhi-NCR, quoted capital values softened by 1-3 per cent in both the mid and high-end segments across most of the sub-markets from the previous quarter.

Bengaluru too witnessed rationalisation of prices in most of the sub-markets across mid and high-end segments.

The real estate developers have cut down on new launches and are reducing the effective cost of their offerings by bundling in incentives and add-ons to clear unsold stocks. To boost sales, developers are offering several lucrative packages and incentives to close deals for genuine buyers. PII

NEW DELHI: More commuters in Delhi and Mumbai opt for "shared" rides on cab aggregation platforms like Ola and Uber compared to their counterparts in other cities.

'Ola Share' and 'uberPOOL' offers cheaper rides to customers as the system combines travellers heading in the same direction. This also helps reduce number of cars on the road and carbon dioxide (CO2) emissions. According to Bengaluru-based Ola, it has seen a 500 per cent growth in Ola Share rides in the last one year. It claimed to have effectively reduced 12 million kgs of CO2 and saved over 70 lakh litres of fuel since October 2015. Ola offers shared rides across 26 Indian cities.

"Cities such as Delhi, Bengaluru, Mumbai, Hyderabad, and Kolkata are the biggest users of Ola Share," Ola COO Vishal Kaul said. Uber, on the other hand, said the launch of uberPOOL across seven cities in India has helped save 34.49 lakh litres of fuel and curb 81.22 lakh kg CO2 emissions in the country. "The fact that millions of people are willing to share their

Ola Share and uberPOOL offer cheaper rides to customers as the systems combine travellers heading in the same direction. This also helps reduce car numbers on roads and carbon dioxide emissions rides gives us the confidence that we are collectively driving a positive change to reduce carbon footprint," Uber India Head of Policy Shweta Rajpal Kohli said. For Uber, 28 per cent of rides in Delhi and 30 per cent in Mumbai are uberPOOL trips. Launched in Bengaluru in September 2015, uberPOOL is available in six other Indian cities. According to the Ministry of Road Transport and Highways, the average occupancy of a car is just 28 per cent. This means that while a car can carry four people, it only carries 1.15 persons. PII

DEN Networks to exit from TV commerce business

NEW DELHI: Cable TV services provider DEN Networks will exit from TV commerce business to focus on cable and broadband segments by selling its entire stake in Macro Commerce Pvt Ltd on a going concern basis. "DEN Networks has entered into a share purchase agreement with Pimex Broadcast Pvt Ltd for selling its entire stake in Macro Commerce on a going concern basis. With this sale, DEN will now be focusing on the cable and broadband industry," the company said in a BSE filing. Den Snapdeal TV - a joint venture between DEN Networks and Jasper Infotech, the holding company of e-commerce major Snapdeal - competed with HomeShop18, Shop CJ and Naaptol shopping TV channels. In July last year, Den Networks hiked its stake in the company to 82.87 per cent from 32.87 per cent earlier. The name of DEN and Snapdeal will be dropped from the TV commerce business' branding. Pimex will hold 100 per cent shares of Macro. PII

Oil Ministry forms 'super-boards' to monitor ONGC, OIL performance

NEW DELHI: The oil ministry has formed all-powerful review committees to monitor performance of ONGC and Oil India, and will have power to relinquish any oil and gas field for auctioning to private firms.

Being dubbed as 'super-boards', the committees will be headed by the ministry's upstream nodal authority DGH, and will review and monitor performance of areas given to Oil and Natural Gas Corp (ONGC) and Oil India Ltd (OIL) on nomination basis.

The two panels - one each for ONGC and OIL, will review from annual work programme and budget to declaration of a discovery as commercial as also reservoir and production performance, monitoring of development activities and collaborations with other explorers.

"The advice/decision of the Review Committee shall be implemented forthwith by the NOC (national oil company) concerned and the progress of implementation shall be reported to the Review Committee through DGH at its next meeting," the May 25 order issued by Atanu Chakraborty, Director General, Directorate General of Hydrocarbons (DGH), said.

The order follows ministry's unhappiness with state explorers particularly on delays in projects linked to output enhancement. It has already ordered a detailed review of board of directors of ONGC for a possible revamp of the functional heads.

"They have all the powers to do so. We have to live with it," said a senior official at one of the two explorers. "If they want to create a 'super-board' so be it," he said. The panels will be headed by DG, DGH and will have two other members from DGH - one Deputy DG and another head of Division in charge of NOCs-monitoring. One representative of ONGC or OIL not below the rank of director will be nominated by the NOCs.

Also, the manager of the asset that is under review would be co-opted as member of the committee, the order said. ONGC produced 86 per cent of its 26.13 million tonnes of crude oil in 2016-17 fiscal from fields

The order for the constitution of the committees will "come into force with immediate effect," he said.

The review committee will meet at least once every three months. The powers of the panels include "annual work programmes and budgets in respect of exploration operations and any modification and revisions thereto" and "annual work programme and budgets in respect of development and production operations and any modifications and revisions thereto."

It will also review "proposals for surrender or relinquishment of any part of the area included in the nomination field". Fields relinquished by NOCs are auctioned to private firms by the government. The first such auction was concluded last fiscal with 67 of fields relinquished by ONGC/OIL being put on sale.

"Performance of non-producing/sub-optimally producing" fields as well as "reservoir and production performance of producing fields" would also be reviewed by the panels, the order said. Field development plans (FDP), feasibility reports of commercial discoveries in nomination fields and monitoring of development activities for early monetisation will also fall within the ambit of the committees.

"Proposals for 'field surveillance' by DGH for better reservoir management" will also be under preview of the committees, the orders said, adding collaboration with licensees or contractors of other areas would as reviewed by them.

Also, proposals for an appraisal programme or revision, declaration of a discovery as commercial discovery along with proposed development area will be function of the panels.

Coal India Ltd to cater to other buyers only after it meets PSU promises

NEW DELHI: State-owned CIL will offer coking coal through auction route to other consumers only after it meets long-term supply commitments of the dry fuel to PSUs, including SAIL.

The decision on the same was taken in the board meeting of Coal India Ltd (CIL) held last month, an official said.

Coking coal will be offered only after meeting long-term commitment of steel plants, including integrated steel plants of SAIL and RINL and other such consumers taking into account those coal fuel supply pacts, the official said.

However, the washed coking coal and steel Grade-II coal can be offered for metallurgical purposes, the official added.

SAIL is a prime consumer of coking coal as well as a major customer of CIL's metallurgical coal.

"While Coal India subsidiaries shall be empowered to decide the reserve price (of coking coal to be offered under e-auction route), upper cap of the reserve price will be on the basis of applicable scheme of e-auction," the official said.

Coking coal is a vital ingredient in the steel making process.

The world's largest coal miner is planning to acquire coking coal mines in Australia as it looks to supplement the requirement of India's metallurgical coal.

However, the discussions are in a very preliminary stage.

India's dependence on imports is particularly heavy on coking coal.

Recognising limited availability of metallurgical coal as an 'disadvantage' for Indian steel sector, the draft steel policy aims at increasing supply of domestic coking coal to cut dependence on imports by half and a production of 300 million tonnes of the alloy by 2030-31.

The National Steel Policy aims at achieving increased domestic availability of washed coking coal so as to reduce import dependence on coking coal by 50 per cent by 2030-31.

Coal India accounts for over 80 per cent of the domestic coal production.

cent respectively, while others were 3 per cent. On the domestic front, GCPL said it has delivered consistent, healthy volume led ahead of the category sales growth despite the impact of demonetisation.

In Indonesia, the company said the growth was impacted by softness in household insecticides. However, constant currency growth witnessed a 9 per cent growth.

African market sustained double-digit organic constant currency growth while Latin America delivered competitive performance in a challenging operating environment, it added.

In Europe, the company said it saw mixed performance with weak sales performance but robust margin expansion.

The company ranks among the largest household insecticide and hair care players in emerging markets. In segments as household insecticides, it is the second largest player in Indonesia and is expanding footprint in Africa.

England set for tougher test against Kiwis

New Zealand's Trent Boult celebrates taking the wicket of Australia's David Warner with team mates

CARDIFF: After a comfortable outing in the tournament-opener, title favourites England are set to face a much stiffer test against New Zealand in a crucial Champions Trophy Group A fixture here on Tuesday.

There is a lot at stake for both the teams. England will put their one foot in the semi-finals with a second successive win while New Zealand will aim for two full points after rain denied them a crack at Australia and the two teams settled for a point each in a game that produced no-result.

England could not have hoped for a better start to the tournament as they thrashed a lacklustre Bangladesh in the first match of the Champions Trophy on Thursday.

How easily they chased down 306 was a timely warning to the other title contenders. Joe Root strolled to a 10th ODI hundred while opener Alex Hales missed out on well-deserved hundred by five runs.

Captain Eoin Morgan too began his campaign on a confident note, smashing an unbeaten 75 off 61 balls.

He, however, would be a tad worried about the lean patch of opener Jason Roy, who has not crossed 20 in his last six ODI innings. The hosts will also have to deal with the absence of fast bowling all-rounder Chris Woakes, who was ruled out of the tournament with an injury after bowling just two overs against Bangladesh. Steven Finn has been named his replacement.

Morgan might also bring back leggie Adil Rashid to add more variety to the bowling department.

Nonetheless, an exciting contest is in the offing with New Zealand showing a lot of promise against Australia.

Captain Kane Williamson led from the front against the trans-Tasmanian rivals with a ninth ODI hundred. Luke Ronchi looked in ominous touch at the top of the order and alongside Martin Guptill, form a dangerous combination.

The Black Caps lost their way towards the end of the innings and they would be aiming to rectify that in the game on Tuesday.

Chasing 235 in 33 overs, Australia were put under severe pressure by New Zealand, reducing them to 53 for three in nine overs before rain had the final say.

Their pace battery, comprising Tim Southee, Adam Milne and Trent Boult, looked in good shape and would be raring to go here on Tuesday.

"In some respects, this is almost like a quarterfinal, the Birmingham no-result throwing a spanner in the works a little bit. "Especially in the last two years, despite England's vastly different approach to white-ball cricket, games between the two teams have been very tight, and I expect another close, well-contested encounter," wrote former New Zealand fast bowler Shane Bond in a column for the ICC.

BIRMINGHAM: Indian captain Virat Kohli said he "felt like a club batter" when teammate Yuvraj Singh was in full flow in the ICC Champions Trophy win against Pakistan here, crediting the left-hander for taking the pressure off him.

Defending champions India started their Champions Trophy campaign with a resounding 124-run victory over arch-rivals Pakistan.

Kohli and Yuvraj stood out in an all-round batting effort, propelling India to 319 for three after rain halted proceedings twice. Yuvraj smashed 53 off 32 balls, while Kohli made 81 off 68 deliveries.

"The way he (Yuvraj) was hitting the ball, I felt like a club batter in front of him," Kohli told reporters at the post-match press conference.

"...after I got to 50, I wasn't able to freely play. And Yuvi came in and just took all the pressure off me. And the way he batted was the way only he can strike the ball, hitting low full tosses for fours and sixes, and even digging out yorkers for fours was outstanding.

"I think that really deflated the opposition and that gave me a bit of time to settle in from the other end. When he got out, I took over. But I think his innings was a difference in the game," he added.

While he was pleased

with the win, Kohli was not impressed with India's fielding.

"With the bat and ball, right up there -- I would say nine out of 10. In the field we were still 6. It's a very strong performance, we've taken the confidence from the practice games.

"We need to tighten our fielding to compete hard against the best teams," he said.

The Indian batsmen remained focussed despite the rain breaks with Rohit Sharma (91 off 119), Shikhar Dhawan (68 off 65), Kohli and Yuvraj rising to the occasion in a game reduced to 48-overs-a-side affair.

"I think the way Shikhar batted was really good to see.

Rohit was taking a bit of time because, understandably so, he's come back after so long to international cricket. IPL is different, but international runs are very different, against a quality bowling attack as well," Kohli said.

"And Hardik, 18 off five balls, was outstanding. We went with four seamers purely because we're playing Pakistan. They play spin really well, and most of them are right-handers.

"In pressure situations, to have mid-on, mid-off up and hit hard lengths, gives us an advantage. Against other sides, we might use two spinners, depending on their strengths," he added.

Asked what it meant to play against Pakistan given the continuing tensions between the two countries, Kohli chose to offer a diplomatic reply.

"This one's done and dusted...We come here to play the sport. And that's all we focus on. It's not my place to speak of any other decisions. The higher officials take care of those decisions," he said.

"My opinion does not matter and should not matter. It's up to them what they decide going ahead. But regardless of who you play, you just want to play cricket," he added.

"It's not preferences over opposition. And that's all I can say to this."

Nonetheless, Kohli said, he does enjoy the competitiveness of Indo-Pak cricket rivalry.

"They're a very competitive side. The atmosphere is great. From that regard, as a cricketer, we really enjoyed this game, that's all I can say," he said.

Reflecting on his own performance, Kohli said he let the momentum slip after reaching 40 and regretted trying too hard for big hits during his partnership with Yuvraj.

"But when he got out, I decided to stay still and just back the strokes that I have and a few connected, and that's what happens in this sport. Momentum comes your way; it goes away.

"But you've got to stay patient. And when it comes back, you've got to capitalise on it. So I believed in myself, I can get 30 off 10 balls as well in the end," he explained.

This Pakistan team lack ability to beat India: Former greats

KARACHI: Pakistan's 124-run defeat to India in the ICC Champions Trophy tournament has been described as "shameful" and "humiliating" by the country's former greats such as Imran Khan and Wasim Akram, critics and fans alike.

Having notched up 319 for three, India bowled out Pakistan for 164 to post a comprehensive victory at the Edgbaston.

"Win and defeat are part of any game but the manner in which we lost to India on Sunday without a fight was very painful," Imran said in a statement.

He added, "Despite having lot of talent Pakistan will continue to fall behind India in cricket unless our cricket structure is revised."

Former captain Rashid Latif said, "Even if Pakistan had fielded its full 15 players I don't think the result would have been different. Such is the difference between the two sides now."

Shahid Afridi said the gap between the two sides is increasing.

"While India has progressed a lot we are falling behind them," he said.

Another former skipper, Aamir Sohail, said while the media loves to present it otherwise the truth is this Pakistan team doesn't have the ability to beat the current Indian side.

Badminton: Scandal-hit BWF deputy prez steps down

KUALA LUMPUR: The Badminton World Federation's deputy president has stepped down as he fights corruption allegations in his home country of Peru. Gustavo Salazar Delgado, the sport's number two official behind president Poul-Erik Hoyer, asked to be "excused from his duties", the BWF said. "In his communication to BWF, Salazar indicated he would step aside for the time being so as not to cause any reputational or undue damage to the BWF while the investigation is in progress," the Kuala Lumpur-based body said. The BWF said the accusations against Salazar related to "personal business matters" and are entirely unrelated to badminton and Salazar's role as BWF deputy president". Salazar was under investigation over a bribery and money-laundering case linked to Brazilian construction firm Odebrecht. Bribery scandals linked to Odebrecht have swept up scores of Brazilian politicians and span several Latin American countries.

We were below-par, loss to India a reality check: Arthur

BIRMINGHAM: Pakistan coach Mickey Arthur feels his side was given a "reality check" by India in the lost Champions Trophy clash here and the "below-par" show was a result of his players letting the occasion get the better of them.

Arthur admitted that Pakistani players lacked self belief and erred in executing simple plans.

"We were below par. It's as simple as that. And it's a reality check of where we are in our one-day cricket at the moment," Arthur told reporters at the post-match press conference here.

"We talk about setting the tone up front. But we didn't set tone up front. We had a couple of guys that were in the clouds at the start and that sets the tone. For us to have a performance as tentative as that right from the start is a worry and the only thing I can think of is the magnitude of the occasion got to them."

India launched their Champions Trophy campaign with a resounding 124-run victory over Pakistan on Sunday, extending their dominance over the arch-rivals in major ICC tournaments.

Pakistan now need to win their final two games against

Sri Lanka and South Africa to stand a chance of qualifying for the semi-finals.

"The guys tried as hard as they could. My issue is fear.

"My issue is getting out there and really looking to take the game on and just believing in themselves and believing that they can take the game on," Arthur said.

"The worrying thing for me, and it has been for a period of time, is we just do the basics wrong. We do the simple things wrong. We drop simple catches. We don't run well enough between wickets," he lamented.

An exasperated Arthur could barely hide his disappointment with his players, who floundered in almost every aspect of the game.

"We don't hit the keeper with our throws. We don't understand when to bowl our variations. We bowled a really good over and then we bowled a variation in our sixth ball and that's the ball that ended up going for a boundary," he said.

"So it's the simplicity of those things that are worrying me at the moment and our understanding of when to do certain things. So that was disappointing. But we'll bounce back from it," he added.

"We selected a team that we thought could go out there and rattle the cages of India. Ultimately our execution wasn't good enough today. We thought we had an attack that could really attack them and put them under pressure. And we didn't execute that at all."

The shoddy performance, notwithstanding, Arthur defended Pakistan's record in recent times.

Sergio Lobera appointed head coach of FC Goa

PANAJI: FC Goa have signed Sergio Lobera Rodriguez as the head coach on a two-year deal and he will take over the reins from the first week of July.

The Spaniard, who has previously coached UD Las Palmas and Moghreb Tetouan in Morocco amongst others, was also part of the late Tito Vilanova's back-room staff during his tenure as the head coach of FC Barcelona.

Lobera said he was "delighted" to join FC Goa and would look to achieve best results for the club.

"I see FC Goa as the ideal step in my career and hope to achieve the best results for the club. The passion for football in Goa is well documented and I'm keen to ensure that we play an attacking brand of football that the people of Goa can be proud of," said the new coach.

"I'm convinced that the club is ideally placed to compete in not just the ISL but across the youth level. Having seen the plans in place for the entire youth set-up and the grassroots program,

"I'm keen to play my part in helping the club work towards a unified playing philosophy, which will extend beyond the realms of the club to all young footballers in Goa who are keen to take up the game," he added.

Trophy.

"We are pretty sure that they will come to an agreement.

But, as you know, we are going to be unemployed come July 1.

So we have to wait and see." Warner said beyond "a couple of emails" CA management had not engaged with its contracted players.

"It is only what we hear in the media and that's how CA have been driving it the whole way," he said.

"They have been using the media as a voice and we get the message from there."

Warner again pledged his "full support" to fellow players and affirmed he is "100 per cent" behind the Australian Cricketers' Association (ACA).

"They are doing a great job for us," he said of the players' union's efforts in the dispute.

"From a players' point of view, we are pretty vocal and upbeat."

Warner added that he remains hopeful a new Memorandum of Understanding can be struck between now and June 30.

"It is a big thing that we could be unemployed, but from us, our job is to play cricket, focus on winning the (Champions Trophy) tournament and not let our country down," he said. CA is determined to scrap revenue-sharing after 20 years, saying more funds were needed for the game's grassroots, and that the offer it has on the table provided handsomely for players.

But the ACA is equally resolved to keep revenue-sharing, saying the system does not need fixing.

With no end in sight to the impasse, the ACA has disclosed plans to form a new business to help male and female players directly negotiate sponsorship deals. Establishing "The Cricketers' Brand", designed to manage and commercialise player's intellectual property (IP) rights, was necessary due to "the uncertainty of all parties regarding IP matters should the players be unemployed post June 30," it recently said.

India hold edge over Nepal in friendly as Chhetri returns

MUMBAI: Boosted by the availability of star striker Sunil Chhetri after his timely recovery from a hamstring injury, hosts India go into the football friendly against lower-ranked Nepal here on Tuesday with their confidence high and as the favourites.

The international friendly is to be played at the Football Arena in Andheri Sports Complex where India's dramatic ascension to no. 100 in the FIFA rankings commenced last September with a 4-0 rout of Puerto Rico.

The Indian squad has been sweating it out at the same venue for three weeks now with only the players from Bengaluru FC and Mohun Bagan missing for the major part due to their club commitments.

With them joining the camp a few days ahead of the friendly against Nepal, which is being used as the tune-up for India's vital AFC Asian Cup Group A qualifier against Kyrgyzstan next week, national head coach Stephen Constantine would be keen to put his best team on the park and make them jell again as a combination.

The players had dispersed to fulfil their respective club commitments after notching up a memorable 1-0 win over Myanmar in the AFC Asian Cup group opener in March end and the main aim will be to reunite in a proper way for the June 13 game against Kyrgyzstan at Bengaluru.

Although key striker Chhetri is fit enough to play, he was unlikely to be included in the friendly as a precaution for the more important game against Kyrgyzstan, said Constantine on Monday.

"(Norway-based goalkeeper) Gurpreet Singh will lead the side. Sunil may not play against Nepal. The AFC Asian Cup qualifier is more important than a friendly. It's just to protect him. He's not 22 anymore. As you get older you will have to put up with injuries and it gets longer to recover," the Englishman explained.

India were hovering in the 170s when they last played against Nepal and Constantine described the ascent as "not an easy journey."

"It was a result of a lot of hard work and commitment from everyone concerned - players, support staff and the rest.

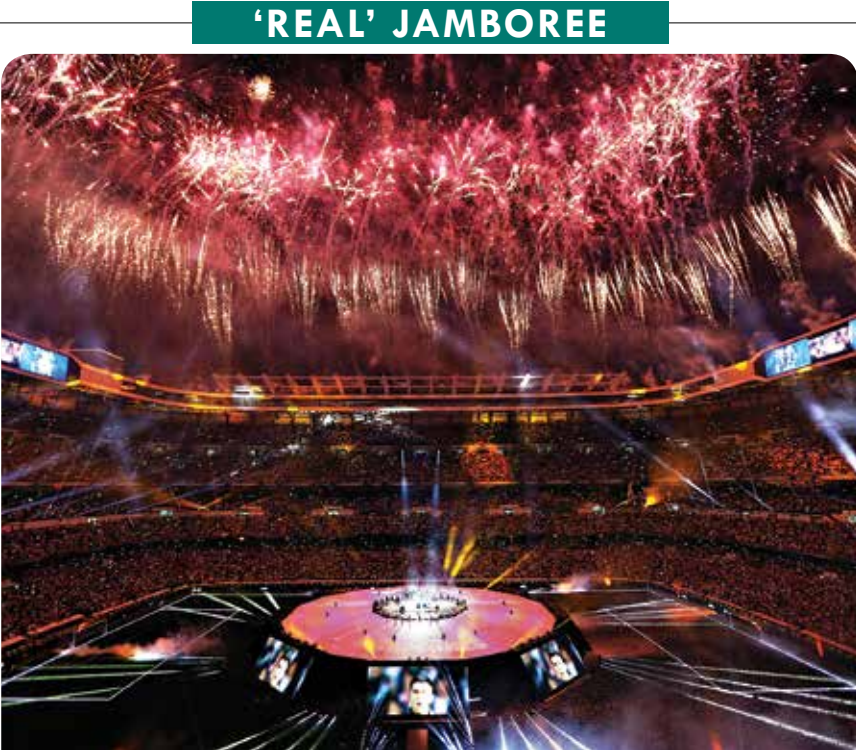

FIFA ranking is just one aspect, a number. It depends on a number of variations," he said.

The team will obviously miss the services of winger Udanta Singh, who has picked up a serious hamstring injury and is out of this game as well as the more important one against the Kyrgyz Republic.

It was Udanta who had laid the perfect pass for Chhetri to bulge the net in the dying moments of the game against Myanmar in Yangon on March 28. India will also miss the services of C K Vineet, said Constantine.

Coming to the India-Nepal football rivalry, the hosts have not lost to their north-eastern neighbours for 18 years, their last defeat - a 0-4 rout - happening in the 1999 SAF Games.

Starc contrast: Bowler takes 4 as Bangladesh wilt for 182

LONDON: Fast bowler Mitchell Starc clinched a four-wicket haul as Australia restricted Bangladesh to 182 runs in their Group A encounter at the Champions Trophy here on Monday.

Starc spearheaded the Australian bowling attack with figures of 4/29 in 8.3 overs.

Leg-spinner Adam Zampa was also impressive on the day, conceding just 13 runs in four overs while bagging two wickets.

Fast bowler Josh Hazlewood, who had bagged a six-wicket haul in Australia's first match against hosts England, returned figures of 1/40 in his 10 overs.

For Bangladesh, experienced opener Tamim Iqbal was the standout performer with 95 runs off 114 balls. Electing to bat first, Bangladesh were off to a shaky start as they lost early wickets. Iqbal and Shakib Al Hasan attempted to steady the boat, adding 69 runs between them. Off-spinner Travis Head

Hasan scored 29 runs, hitting just two boundaries in the 48 balls he faced. The Bangladesh batting line-up folded up after his departure, losing the next six wickets for just 60 runs. Australia have one point

Harmanpreet scores two in India's win against Belgium

DUSSELDORF: India's dragflick sensation Harmanpreet Singh scored twice to ensure a 3-2 victory over Belgium in a battle of nerves at the Three Nations Invitational Tournament here on Monday.

Earlier in the tournament, India had lost 1-2 to Belgium in their first match and drew 2-2 with Germany in their second game. It was goals by Harmanpreet Singh (34', 38') and forward Raman-deep Singh (49') that helped India win.

After losing their previous game 1-2 to Germany yesterday, Belgium made a strong start against India by playing an attacking game right from the word go.

The 2016 Rio Olympics silver medallists showed precision and were dominant with skill and ball possession. Though India caught them on the wrong foot early on by earning back-to-back PCs, they could not convert the chances.

Belgium, however, came up with a brilliant field goal, thanks to Amaury Keusters, to take a 1-0 lead in the 13th minute and put India under pressure.

India played cautiously in the second quarter, not allowing Belgian attackers easy penetration inside the striking circle. Meanwhile, India won two PCs in the 23rd and 24th minute but Harmanpreet's well-struck flick was blocked by Belgian defenders. The second quarter went goalless.

The Scot, 30, goes on to face Japan's Kei Nishikori or Fernando Verdasco of Spain in the last eight.

"Paris has had some problems in the last few years and I'm sure everyone will join me in sharing the fact that our thoughts and prayers are with those affected by this.

"It is something which has affected large parts of Europe and all over the world. I appreciate everyone still coming out to support us and I'm grateful I can perform in front of you."

Murray - beaten finalist last year - continued where he left off against Juan Martin del Potro on Saturday to beat the unseeded Russian with barely a scare.

The only British man to win the French Open is Fred Perry, in 1935.

Murray followed up his impressive third-round win over Juan Martin del Potro with another display that suggests he is a real contender in Paris.

His struggles with form and fitness leading into Roland Garros had left him sticking to the 'one game at a time' mantra, with good reason.

However, the hugely powerful Khachanov, ranked 53rd, was dismissed by another Murray performance built around his trademark defensive skills allied with some solid serving.

The gap in experience was huge, with Murray trying to reach his 29th Grand Slam quarter-final and 21-year-old Khachanov his first.

It was quickly apparent that Khachanov's power would take some getting used to, as the Russian drew gases from the crowd for both forehands and backhands.

Ariana's Manchester benefit gig raises €2.35 million

The star-studded concert was held in support of the May 22 Manchester victims

LONDON: The British Red Cross has raised an "incredible" 2.35 million euros during Ariana Grande's star-studded 'One Love Manchester' benefit concert at Old Trafford stadium on June 4.

Earlier in the day, the society's official account tweeted that its Manchester Emergency Fund had reached 7.3 million euros, bringing the total raised by the concert's end to 9.65 million euros.

The concert was in support of the victims of the Manchester Arena terror attack on May 22.

The fund "will help alleviate immediate suffering and ensure victims and their families do not face short-term financial difficulties," the British Red Cross tweeted.

The concert, organised and headlined by Grande, saw some of the biggest names in the music world, including Coldplay, Take That, Robbie Williams, Pharrell, Miley Cyrus, Niall Horan, The Black Eyed Peas, Imogen Heap, Katy Perry and Justin Bieber.

The 23-year-old pop diva belted out her several hits such as 'Break Free', 'Side to Side', 'Be Alright' and 'The Way' during the three-hour show. Ariana Grande cried as she sang a heartbreaking version of 'Somewhere over the rainbow' to close her 'One Love Manchester' benefit concert.

It was an emotional time for Grande, who just days earlier had visited some of the victims in the hospital. She also talked during the show about meeting the mother of one of the victims, Olivia Campbell, 15, who died in the terrorist bombing.

"As soon as I met her, I started crying and I gave her a big hug and she said I should stop crying because Olivia would have wanted me to stop crying," Grande told the audience.

"And she said Olivia would have wanted to hear the hits."

The singer said she had rearranged her line-up to honour Campbell.

After the Take That members Gary Barlow, Howard Donald and Mark Owen finished their gig, Barlow introduced their 'brother' Robbie Williams who was taking to the stage after them, reports metro.co.uk.

Williams came on and Take That started to leave, but he called his former bandmates back so they could take a bow together.

Former Oasis frontman Liam Gallagher was a surprise addition to the line-up. Martin filled in for Liam's brother Noel on acoustic guitar, reports bbc.com.

Grammy Award winning singer Justin Bieber fought back tears during a short speech after performing acoustic versions of 'Love yourself' and 'Cold water' at the charity event.

In a voice choked with emotion, the 'Purpose' hitmaker told the audience on June 4 that he wasn't going to "let go of hope", and shared some encouraging words from his faith, reports etonline.com.

"God is good in the midst of the darkness. God is good in the midst of evil. God is in the midst, no matter what is happening in the world. And he loves you, and he's here for you."

"I just want to take this moment to honour the people that were lost, that were taken," he said.

"We love you so much. To the families, we love you so much. Put both hands up to honour those people right now."

The benefit concert has been a star-studded and emotional affair, with heartfelt speeches from performers like Pharrell and Miley Cyrus too.

Fergie isn't leaving Black Eyed Peas

LOS ANGELES: Rapper will.i.am has refuted reports of Fergie's departure from Black Eyed Peas by tweeting they are "lies".

Recently, a UAE entertainment news magazine Ahlan! had reported that he, Taboo and apl.de.ap spoke to the outlet that Fergie has left the band.

The magazine quoted will.i.am as saying, "Since the beginning of Black Eyed Peas, we've always had amazing vocalists that appeared on the mic with us. People like Macy Gray, Esthero, Debi Nova, Fergie. On Elephunk, there were several females that appeared on that album."

"Obviously Fergie was the featured female, but on songs like 'Let's Get it Started', it's Noelle (Scaggs), and then Fergie, songs like 'Latin Girls', it's Debi Nova, and 'Request Line', it's Macy Gray. We'll always work with good females."

Now taking to Twitter, will.i.am said his statement has been misconstrued.

"Lies...@Fergie is focusing on #DoubleDutchess and @BEP is doing #MastersOfTheSun... That doesn't mean @fergie is out of the group #BEP4ever," he tweeted.

He added, "People will report what ever they want to report regardless of the sources... It's a crazy world..." The rapper also retweeted Fergie's post, which read, "Everyone knows I will always love and support my @bep brothers, @iamwill, @tabbep, @apldeap."

Sridevi is back with MOM

OUR CORRESPONDENT

After wowing audience with her performance in English Vinglish, Sridevi is back with Mom directed by Ravi Udyawar. Interestingly, Mom happens to be Sridevi's 300th film and 2017 marks her 50th anniversary in the film industry.

The film went on to become a subject of heated discussions as the makers pulled off a casting coup with powerhouse performers like superstar Sridevi, Nawazuddin Siddiqui and Akshaye Khanna being roped in for the film. That's not all; the music of Mom has been composed by maestro A R Rahman, making it one of the most sought after films this year.

The trailer of the film was launched by Sridevi, Nawazuddin Siddiqui, director Ravi Udyawar and producers Boney Kapoor and Sujay Kutty from Zee Studios. It left the audience at the edge of their seats with its gripping plot and glimpse of the fine performances in store. Also present at the launch were Jhanvi and Khushi Kapoor.

Expressing herself at the event, Sridevi said, "This film was extremely challenging but it was a very special experience. I'm happy that I got to work with such great actors and we had a great time shooting for the film."

On the occasion Nawazuddin Siddiqui added, "When I was approached for the film I just couldn't refuse as it was an opportunity to work with Sridevi. I was even more excited when I saw the references of my look in the film. It was an opportunity to do something different and look different."

"Since this is Sridevi's 300th film it had to be special. She has never really attempted something like this before and whoever has watched the film believes this is one of her finest performances," said producer Boney Kapoor.

Sujay Kutty, Business Head Zee Studios added further, "At Zee Studios; we strongly believe in backing good content. We are excited to be partner with Boney Kapoor for this film and look forward to present it to a wide spectrum of audience across the world."

Mad Films and NA film production's Mom has been directed by Ravi Udyawar and the music is composed by A R Rahman. The film will hit the screens on July 7 in Tamil, Telugu, Malayalam and Hindi.

Chris Pine slams Avengers: Infinity War title

LOS ANGELES: Actor Chris Pine has an issue with the title of Marvels film Avengers: Infinity War, and wonders do "we need more war for all time?"

In an interview with Screen Slam for his film Wonder Woman, the actor took a jibe at the third "Avengers" movie when he was asked if adding a theme of humanity to the usual blockbuster action was something that drew him to the DC film, reports express.co.uk.

Pine said, "One of the reasons for sure. She, in particular - Patty (director Patty Jenkins) was a great reason why I wanted to be involved. I met her, I hadn't read - there was no script. Then she told me what she wanted to do: the story, my character, and Gal's (Gal Gadot) character."

"I agree that within this genre, it's difficult to do something new, and usually, you just see a bunch of people killing one another - in outfits and blowing up cities. Like, I know there's a thing called Infinity War, which is like, I don't - really, like, Infinity War? We need more war for all time?"

Wonder Woman Gal Gadot challenges Thor to fight
